A NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM

THE A ❖ B ❖ C OF PROFIT—

SERVICE AND ECONOMY ARE THE BASIS OF PROFITS!

A AMPLE STOCK ON HAND

After your customer has signed on the "dotted line"—the next important consideration is to have your stock at nearby points. These stocks await IMMEDIATE shipment so that your customer gets his merchandise promptly and you receive your money quickly. The facilities of Distribution Service Warehouses will perform this important part of your service.

B QUICKEST POSSIBLE SERVICE

Here is where SERVICE really counts. Your trade demands promptness
—to enable them to take advantage of seasonal conditions;
—to effect quick "turn-over" for regular trade;
—for strategic retail sales planning events;
—to fill in depleted items.

C LOWEST OVERHEAD COSTS

Knowledge of definite overhead cost per sales unit is necessary to accurately figure profits. With a fixed cost for such items as rent, light, heat, telephone, supervision, compensation insurance and the numerous other expenses necessary in a branch warehouse plan, applying against a fluctuating volume of sales, it is practically impossible to figure costs. Distribution Service Warehouses absorb these fixed expenses, quoting you definite costs per sales unit.

—It is INDIVIDUALIZED to fit your exact requirements.
—It costs you LESS and gives you MORE than any other plan of distribution.
—It is essential for obtaining NEW business and an urgent necessity for OLD business which you formerly may have handled on a consignment basis.

Without obligation, we will prepare a proposition covering warehouse costs for your individual needs based on a nation-wide distribution or by state or locality, whereby you will know the definite cost per sales unit. With this plan you pay only for overhead based on actual sales volume.

Write or phone us today, stating your requirements in the various localities in which you operate, requesting any other distributing facts you desire. We will also gladly furnish any other useful data and counsel needed regarding transportation facilities, rates, etc., and other items so necessary to an economical and efficient sales program.

THE MAN AND THE TRUCK

..working Partners of the Highway

MILLIONS of loads of merchandise travel by truck each year—wheels on the road and a driver in the cab. And now that it's winter, the traveling is tough. Pleasure traffic heads for cover, but trucks—and a man for every truck—must stick to the job! Man and truck go all the way together, cross-town or cross-country—a close and intimate partnership that means a great deal for America.

Here's a fact that won't surprise truck drivers, but it may be news to you: More heavy-duty trucks are purchased from INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER than from the next three manufacturers combined . . . There are plenty of sound and practical reasons why the man in this man-and-truck partnership is so often teamed with an International. Hundreds of thousands of International drivers sum it up something like this: "It's a great go-getting truck that you can depend on from every angle and for any need, and that goes for the service too!"

So much for the partners on the highway. Of course the owner belongs in the picture too—and how! He's the BOSS. He buys the truck to start with, and that means he and the driver feel the same way about it.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY
(INCORPORATED)
180 North Michigan Avenue Chicago, Illinois

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER sells more heavy-duty trucks than the next three manufacturers combined.

INTERNATIONAL

Heavy-duty Internationals range from 2-ton up to big 6-wheelers . . . The same owner-driver satisfaction applies to Internationals of ½-ton to 1½-ton capacities. See any International Company-owned branch or dealer about quality trucks and low-cost hauling.

MORE FRUEHAUF TRAILERS ON THE ROAD THAN ANY OTHER MAKE

THE "open mind" works miracles in reducing the costs of transportation. Chief executives are free from prejudice and preconceived ideas. They're neither "truck-minded" nor "Trailer-minded"—they're "profit-minded!" Struggling with all kinds of unusual expenses, they're turning to Trailers—and these useful business tools are trimming costs so that profits can come back and UP!

And we, of the nation-wide Fruehauf organization, welcome all opportunities to work with executives of the Warehousing industry—to cooperate by fitting Fruehauf Trailers to haulage situations so efficiently that substantial profits are realized.

Do you want better profits in 1939? Have you "gotten to the bottom" of your transportation problems by thoroughly investigating the proper use of Fruehauf Trailers?

Write me, personally, if you desire—I'll see that you get helpful action quickly!

What About 1939?

THIS new year ushers in a definite promise of greater tonnage for transportation facilities and for storage in public warehouses. What with the contemplated market studies by various districts of the country to reveal their respective sales potentialities to industry in general and the ever-increasing demand by industry to delve deeply for facts that will increase sales, there is no doubt that all sections of the country will play an important part in the sales activities that will take place.

More advertising will be done and that means more business by the wholesalers and retailers; this in turn means more carloads and shiploads as well as more public storage. As regards storage, industry is now more than ever cognizant of the fact that there is a definite tie-up with demand created by advertising and availability of stocks. Consequently, regardless of where consumer demand exists and dealers are available for handling the merchandise, at some point nearby, public storage will be used as an answer to the problem of convenient handling of turnover.

Food companies have learned through research that factory sales are no accurate measure of consumer demand and that along the line a good part of the output may be tied up either on the wholesalers' or the dealers' shelves. Or conversely, stocks may be short or the market nil at a time when past production experience indicates such conditions should be just the opposite. Such problems are to be given more light and will be solved under a basis that will reveal through market research a more accurate measure of what effect advertising, sales promotion, price, quality, etc., have on the sales potentialities of each and every sales market.

Such a fact-finding effort is bound to get results. This means that many small towns and other lightly populated places are going to be concentrated on for new business and that many time-honored merchandising methods are going to be shelved to be replaced by methods of more accurate determination.

Warehouse Rate Chiselers

THINGS have come to a pretty pass when ambitious traffic managers stoop to sending out form letters to warehousemen telling them in their respective cities that their rates are the highest at those points. Not only is the method used silly but it is lacking in common honesty.

It is silly, first, because few warehousemen are gullible enough to believe the authenticity of such statements, and secondly, because rates are only one of many other considerations just as important in judicious selection of storage facilities. As a result, the sender of such letters is immediately stamped with disapproval of his fitness in filling the job assigned him and his company is listed as a chiseler. Efforts to secure preferential rates are, however, not ordinarily frowned on, but expected under the routine of getting business. But there is a big difference between an honest approach on the question and the method above mentioned.

There are few, probably none, millionaires in the warehousing business and this is because no one has as yet succeeded in maintaining rates for storage that make for real profits. In many cases, what profits have been made, have disappeared in government taxes, labor charges, etc., etc. One hundred per cent occupancy of all warehouse space in many instances at some of the prevailing rates would only increase the figures on the red side of the ledger. There is no "velvet" in additional tonnage placed in empty space, unless it's handling, booking, etc., is productive of an income beyond the costs involved. Consequently, the smart warehousemen are letting unprofitable business go to others. The latter are accepting such accounts because of either the expectancy of higher rates later on or the promise of greater tonnage eventually to justify the rate becoming profitable on a slim margin. However, the rates charged and the service rendered go hand in hand and the sooner this is understood by space buyers seeking "bargain" prices the better for the warehousing and shipping fraternity in general.

Tax Burden Facts

TAXES! Taxes! Every business man is talking about his tax problem. Yet no one actually knows the present tax burden on trade or industry. It is well known that the tax load on business has grown heavier in recent years, that taxes frequently absorb a large part of potential profits. Nevertheless, business men do not know which industries carry the heaviest burden; whether taxes bear most heavily on small, medium or large concerns; or how much tax is Federal, how much State and Local.

A nation-wide survey now being made by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., will yield answers to these questions in addition to continuing last year's Survey of Business Trends — estimates of 1938 sales volume in various trades and industries, and inventory investment at the close of the year. Is business forging ahead, holding its own or slipping backwards? Have sales improved as much during 1938 as is generally reported? Are inventories being depleted or are warehouses and shelves still overstocked?

About the first of January 2,000,000 questionnaires will be mailed to every business concern listed in the Dun & Bradstreet's Reference Book. Every manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer in the country is asked to give his experience. The questions have been prepared with the advice of leading business men, economists and tax experts to yield a maximum of information with minimum effort on the part of contributors.

Following last year's precedent, the results of this Business Trend and Tax Burden Survey will first be published on a summary basis, but detailed analyses of major problems and divisions will follow as rapidly as completed. However, the speed with which the information is released will depend on the promptness with which the answers are submitted, and the size of the sample available for analysis.

The results of this survey for many trade and related lines will be published in this magazine as soon as the Research & Statistical Division of Dun & Bradstreet can make them available. Our readers are urged to cooperate in order that the data for this trade may be comprehensive and accurate. If you have mislaid your questionnaire, another copy will be furnished you by the nearest Dun & Bradstreet office, or by writing direct to this magazine.

A Decision, Far-Reaching

THE Supreme Court of the United States, in deciding the McDonald vs. Thompson case Dec. 5, has indirectly reversed an interpretation of the Interstate Commerce Commission in administration of the Federal Motor Carrier Act, as in the Slagle case.

The Commission has taken the position that anyone who has been engaged in operation as a motor carrier continuously since before July 1, 1935, was entitled to a certificate under the Act, even though his operations may have been in violation of a state law.

The Supreme Court holds, in effect, that the federal law granted this right to "bona fide" operators and that the phrase "bona fide" must be closely defined in this connection. It takes the position that mere physical operation is not necessarily bona fide, the decision including this language:

"The expression, 'in bona fide operation,' suggests absence of evasion  and in context implies recognition of the power of the State to withhold or condition the use of its highways in the business of transportation for hire. Plainly the proviso does not extend to one operating as a common carrier on public highways of a State in defiance of its laws.

"We need not consider to what extent, if at all, the Federal Motor Carrier Act superseded the state Motor Truck Law ***."

This is a far-reaching decision and affects a considerable number of interstate operators who are applicants for federal authority but who do not have authority in the states through which they operate.

Bill for Bonded Warehouses in Utah Planned

The Utah state legislature, which will convene early in January, is to be presented with a bill, sponsored by the state board of agriculture, providing for bonded warehouses. Officials said that the proposed law would protect both the producer and the consumer of farm products.

Wharfage Increase Refused by Rails at Los Angeles

At the December meeting in Chicago of the transcontinental rail carriers, the Los Angeles Harbor Department's request that the rail lines absorb a portion of the 10-cent per ton increased wharfage charge was refused. By this action, it is felt that considerable overland tonnage will be lost to the port.

In declining the request the rail line representatives pointed out that business originating or distributed to the Orient, moving through the Los Angeles port, should be on a basis of parity insofar as terminal charges are concerned and each type of carrier accorded equality of opportunity to compete for available business.

The transcontinental import and export rate tariffs provide that the rail lines will absorb 50 per cent of the wharfage charges at Los Angeles Harbor which do not exceed 7½ cents per ton. The major steamship lines named in the tariff by agreement have in the past absorbed an equal amount. This has resulted in the entire amount of wharfage charges being absorbed on transcontinental business.

The rates at Los Angeles Harbor on Sept. 1 were increased from 15 to 25 cents per ton and the Harbor Department has been endeavoring to have the rail lines agree to increasing their absorption charges from 7½ cents to 12½ cents, feeling confident that if this were accepted, the steamship lines named in the tariff agreement would follow suit.

Saturday Closing at Terminals

The McCormick Steamship Co. in conjunction with other steamship lines in the San Francisco district intend conducting an experiment as to the closing of its terminals for the delivery and receipt of freight on Saturday afternoons.

This trial took effect Dec. 3 and every Saturday thereafter no deliveries to consignees will be made. Effective Jan. 7, the docks will similarly be closed for the receiving of cargo. The only exceptions will apply to perishables, refrigerated cargo, mail and baggage, or goods moving under emergency conditions.

Additional Loads Problem Cleared in Michigan

H. H. Hardy, executive secretary of the Michigan Furniture Warehousemen's Assn., has given out the following notice to the members:

"There has been some confusion recently over the charges to be assessed on additional loads and we are herewith expressing our opinion. When the amount of the goods is sufficient to require more than one truck load, the rate should be charged for the total amount of weight at the rate for that amount regardless of the number of vehicles required. However, when the shipper desires to have part of the goods at one time and part of the goods at another time, then it would become two separate shipments requiring two separate bills of lading and the correct charge made at the weight for each individual shipment.

"Controversy comes up in such cases when the bid is made on the entire shipment at the request of the shipper they are moving in separate shipments which increases the charges, it is our opinion therefore under such circumstances that the carrier should designate on the bill of lading that the shipper ordered the goods in separate shipments and that the charges would be made accordingly before shipper signs the bill of lading and that the carrier should thoroughly explain to the shipper that these additional charges will be made.

"Without this information definitely set forth when the shipper makes a complaint to the Commission, the latter is very liable to rule with the shipper and the carrier is liable to be judged incorrect on his charges."

MAKE THE INSTITUTE DREAM COME TRUE

The Distribution Field will see a new day of efficiency and greater profit when Traffic Management is standardized

F. A. KEELING

Traffic Manager
The National Colortype Co.,
Bellevue, Ky.

THE passing of the old and the arrival of the New Year is considered a time for taking inventory; New Year's Eve is said to be the time for retrospection, introspection and considering the prospects for the coming year.

The past and present or traffic management as a profession is known to all engaged in the profession. The best description of the status quo of traffic management was given by one who has spent practically a lifetime in transportation undertakings when he said:

"The so-called big shots of traffic management loudly proclaim the worthiness of the profession to a professional status, such as is accorded the learned professions of medicine, law and accountancy, but they have done nothing in 10 yrs. to get it there. If the profession is worthy of such a place, they should put it there or else admit it is just another vocation; for as long as shipping clerks who cannot read a tariff can call themselves traffic managers, how can business executives consider traffic management on the same plane as the learned professions."

That the above statement is true and sound advice, all must admit. However, after the above statement was made, a visiting traffic manager, who in former years had covered much of the United States while employed by a railroad company, stated: "I know personally many of the so-called big shot traffic managers; some of these men should be chief clerks or assistant traffic managers, for they quit studying years ago and are holding their jobs because someone in their department knows what they don't know. They couldn't pass an examination, therefore, they don't want to face one." As to the truthfulness of this statement, the answer is left to the reader, as other important facts need to be presented regarding the profession of traffic management.

I. Retrospectively, or in the past:

In 1928, the Secretary of Commerce in his Annual Report for the year ending June 30th, stated in connection with Industrial Traffic Management:

"It is further evident that at the present time it is difficult for an executive to determine the fitness of an applicant for such work or to check the capability of the employee after engagement. It is, therefore, hoped that some system may be worked out whereby traffic clubs or similar organizations may hold public examinations in traffic management and issue certificates of fitness for various grades—as for instance, director of traffic, senior traffic manager, junior traffic manager, traffic clerk, etc."

I contend that this statement alone should have caused traffic managers interested in the profession (if such existed at that time) to immediately organize a professional Institute, because

1. Such an Institute was needed to protect business executives;

2. Such an Institute was needed to raise the standard of the profession,

(a) Intellectually.

(b) Ethically.

Why are the learned professions held in higher esteem than traffic management, if not because the members of those professions even years ago considered the public, and therefore, made it possible for the public to know who of their members have prepared themselves to efficiently serve? Is this not the reason for the institute of accountancy and even the professional organization representing insurance and real estate selling and property management?

In 1929, a most comprehensive and excellent textbook, entitled, "Practice and Evidence before the Interstate Commerce Commission" by H. C. Lust, was offered to the traffic profession. From this book I quote the following:

"In the year 1928 in the city of New Orleans on November 13th, before the 40th annual convention of the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners, the Hon. Clyde B. Aitchison of the Interstate Commerce Commission made this statement:

"This profession is akin to that of the lawyer, but as we shall see, it is less and it is more. The contention I make is for the recognition of this pursuit as a calling distinct from but related to, other of the learned professions, and for the development of educational and ethical standards which will make the profession of greatest usefulness as a part of our governmental machinery."

I contend that although the entire speech is a marvelous portrayal of the Commissioner's conception of the intellectual and ethical standards required of those who would practice before the I.C.C., and that since a well known professor of transportation has stated that the right to practice before the I.C.C. should be the goal of every student of traffic management (G. Lloyd Wilson—"Procedure before Regulatory Bodies," correspondence school text books), therefore, the so-called recognized traffic managers failed miserably to do their duty in respect to the Interstate Commerce Commission, as well as to those who, since 1928, have sought to practice before the I.C.C. The statement cited, though only a small part of the Commissioner's entire address, nevertheless, should have caused the big men of the traffic profession to immediately organize a professional Institute.

But the retrospective view shows that for almost 10 yrs., the so-called traffic profession, even though represented by three large national organizations, not only passed up the recommendations in the Secretary of Commerce Report of 1928, but also the recommendations of Commissioner Aitchison, presented the same year.

Is it to be wondered that certificates to practice before the I.C.C. are possessed by men who never expected to or could not practice before that tribunal? No doubt, this is the cause for the Amended Rules of 1938.

But the business executive is still unprotected; the title "Traffic Manager" means nothing, for it has been self-conferred by former office employees and commercial agents of carriers, as well as by shipping clerks. Without an educational and ethical standard and stated requirements as to practical experience, the so-called profession of traffic management cannot claim equality or a place beside the learned professions.

In the year 1930, there appeared a book listed as Domestic Commerce Series No. 39, the title, "Industrial Traffic Management — a Survey of its Relation to Business." The foreword advises that the Associated Traffic Clubs of America urged the Department of Commerce to undertake a survey of traffic management. On page 2, under the caption, "Value of Survey," portions of letters from traffic managers are published which I cite:

"Herein lies the golden opportunity to assist in the elevation of traffic management and the traffic manager to that high level of recognition and respect to which the importance of the work and the integrity of the men employed therein are entitled."

Truly, a golden opportunity was presented in the publishing of this book; the Department of Commerce certainly more than did its part to elevate traffic management, but the traffic managers failed to do their part. Why?

"The field of traffic management should be placed on the same plane as Certified Public Accountants, engineers, etc., for traffic management is just as much a profession as accountancy, engineering or architecture."

So wrote a traffic manager prior to 1930, almost 9 yrs. ago. Where were the other traffic managers in 1930?

The third letter states:

"The study you are making will be of great value not only to the traffic profession but more so to the manufacturers, who do not understand what traffic supervision can do for them in reducing costs and meeting competition. Without a doubt, this study will be of great value to executives and business in general, because at the present time there seems to be a lack of understanding on the part of many shippers and receivers as to the functions of a traffic department."

How valuable indeed was this survey to the traffic profession! I agree with a western traffic manager that, had the three organizations called off their conventions for 1 yr. after 1930 and used the usual convention expense in purchasing copies of this book for distribution to business men, and had the local traffic clubs called off a few stag parties and used the funds to purchase copies of the book for distribution to business men, an Institute of Traffic Management would have been organized in 1932 even against the wishes of the so-called big shots, for the business executives and business men in general would have demanded an organization, at least as outlined by the Secretary of Commerce in 1928.

In 1930, the published findings of the Department of Commerce, ibid., strongly emphasized the need of a standard course of study, for such a standard would:

1. Set forth the detailed subject matter that training must cover for such work, and the source of the information. This would enable schools to offer training in these subjects.

At the present time, without a guide of this kind, even though suitable training materials are available, traffic courses are not generally offered in colleges and other educational institutions.

After 9 yrs. the above statement is still a true description of the need of a standard course of study in traffic management.

The manager of the transportation bureau of a large city, in commenting upon the courses of study offered by the colleges of his city, advises that "The courses are fundamentally sound, but the trouble is they are working toward nothing definite."

An official of a large midwestern motor transportation company states that 60 per cent of the clerks of the company are definitely interested in studying or securing an education on traffic, but the local schools as well as correspondence schools do not seem to have courses that are satisfactory. Therefore, the management has instituted an educational program for its employees. Two other large motor transportation companies have done likewise.

Traffic Manager Response

LETTERS from all sections of the country acclaiming the plan for the formation of an Institute of Traffic Management are very heartening to Mr. Keeling and the publishers of DandW.

They represent sufficient evidence to prove that the rank and file of traffic managers are far from apathetic about the question and that something definite and concrete can be expected in 1939.

From all sections of the country, earnest students of transportation and traffic management have requested information regarding up-to-date text books and courses. "What must I study to become a recognized traffic manager?" is a question propounded by many. One student writes as follows:

"If I wanted to study pharmacy, law, medicine or accountancy, a catalog from our state university would give me the desired information. My brother has just completed a course in accountancy and passed the examination for the C.P.A. I am interested in traffic management, which is called a profession; if it is, why haven't the traffic managers organized an institute and prepared a standard course of study so that students desiring to enter the profession can obtain a university catalog that will inform them as to the educational standard that must be met in order to obtain a certificate, or degree in traffic management?"

Why haven't they raised a standard? Surely this is a logical question.

The Secretary of the Department of Commerce advised the traffic profession 10 yrs. ago to raise such a standard, still, there is none.

A retrospective view of traffic management shows that at various times since 1930 the Institute program has been presented by well known educators in transportation magazines. In the year 1935, a definite program for organizing such an Institute was presented to the traffic profession, but until a few months ago, the majority of the traffic managers and even members of the Educational Committees of the transportation associations had forgotten all about the 1935 program. The "Institute Baby," as the program was called by some, was allowed to die because it was considered premature.

From articles published in various local traffic club magazines and hundreds of letters from traffic managers, the September issue of the DandW is credited with the honor of having resurrected the Institute of Traffic Management "baby" or program.

From the magazine published by the Galveston, Texas, Traffic and Foreign Trade Club, I quote the following:

"A Dream That May Come True: In our last issue we mentioned an article appearing in DandW regarding the need for an Institute of industrial traffic management. It seems that the article has unleashed a veritable flood of approval from all parts of the country, and as a result, the subject has been docketed for discussion at the fall meeting of the Associated Traffic Clubs of America. If favorable action is taken at Cleveland, it is almost certain to receive the united approval of member clubs. It looks as though recognition of industrial traffic management is in the offing."

It is to be regretted that the Cleveland convention placed the Institute program in the same status as a prior convention did in 1935. Since writing the article for publication in the December issue of DandW, the writer has received a letter from one of the organizations representing traffic management, which proves that the special committee of 1935 appointed to present the Institute program to the other associations did not do so. Therefore, it is the duty of all traffic managers to keep the flood of interest unleashed by the article in the September issue of DandW at flood stage, so that the Institute program does not die in the arms of another special committee.

II. Introspectively, or looking inward is a valuable New Year's experience; however, since in our retrospective view of the profession of traffic management we have considered the profession as a whole, no doubt it will prove beneficial for each traffic manager to look within or ponder over such questions as the following:

1. Have you, by reading or study, endeavored to make yourself a better traffic manager, or is your knowledge of traffic management that of years ago?

2. Have you in any way sought to elevate traffic management to its proper or rightful place with the other learned professions, or in reading articles on the subject, did you say, "Let George do it?"

3. Have you considered that if traffic management is really a profession, then a professional Institute should be organized, not for selfish interests but

(a) To protect business executives.

(b) To raise the standard of the profession.

(c) To make it possible for those who would enter the profession to know just what they must do in order to become a recognized and certified traffic manager?

4. Introspection, according to the dictionary, is an examination of one's motives; the same book gives one definition of the word "motive" as causing motion. Since an Institute of Traffic Management requires the united support of all those engaged in traffic management, are you willing to keep the program moving until the Institute is no longer a dream, but a reality?

III. A prospective view of the profession of traffic management, especially in the year 1939.

Is it possible to organize an Institute of Traffic Management in the year 1939?

In numerous letters, this question has been propounded to the writer, and my answers have been the same:

1. It is not possible, if you expect an Institute to drop out of the skies and you, yourself, do nothing.

2. It is not possible if as in the past we wait until every traffic manager cries out "I want an Institute of Traffic Management."

3. It is not possible if you wait for the three national organizations to organize an Institute. Their excuse has been that they have been waiting on you to say you want an Institute.

If the traffic profession is not worthy of a professional organization, then cease calling it a profession, and let all who will, confer the title "Traffic Manager" on themselves and let the public consider a traffic manager, a traffic cop, shipping clerk or whatever they please. But if it is worthy of a professional organization, then it is worthy of propagation and missionary work; in other words, talk it up, write it up, work it up, and make it a reality.

Then, why give so much time proposing and propagating an Institute? Because I believe the profession of traffic management is worthy of a professional organization or Institute of Traffic Management in the year 1939, and that it can be a reality, if:

Traffic managers in every state will soon after Jan. 1, 1939, call a state meeting and organize as did the traffic managers of the State of Utah in 1934. The Utah state organization is called the "Utah Traffic Manager's Council," and has as officers a president; three vice-presidents—one for each of the three zones in which the state is divided, namely: Salt Lake, Ogden and Provo; a secretary; assistant secretary, and treasurer. These officers and five members compose the Executive Committee.

That the organizing of state councils will lend much stimulus to a national organization is stated in many letters.

As the professions of law, medicine, and accountancy have their state organizations, the majority of my correspondents believe traffic management should also have similar bodies. The plan suggested in the 1935 Report is as follows:

"The American Institute of Traffic Management should be managed by an Executive Committee.

"It is suggested that the officers of the Institute consist of the following: A president; a vice-president for each major rate territory—New England, Trunk Line, Central Freight Association, Southern, Western Trunk Line, Southwestern, North Pacific Coast, Pacific Coast Territories; a secretary; a treasurer; a dean or director of education; an executive committee; and a board of examiners for eligibility and membership."

Then follows a suggested list of officers for the local chapters to which no objections have been raised by correspondents.

But why divide the national organization according to rate territories, even if traffic management has to do with transportation?

There are state problems that require the attention of traffic managers of that state. The work of

MATERIALS HANDLING FORUM

Conducted by

MATTHEW W. POTTS

THE FORUM will provide a place where the manufacturer or the user may set forth opinions regarding materials handling equipment and methods now in use or contemplated. If you have a problem on which you desire assistance—write the Forum. If you have ideas as to how to improve handling methods—write the Forum. Questions regarding the best type of equipment for handling specific commodities are pertinent; as are questions regarding the adaptability of various types of equipment for a specific problem or installation.

Packaging the Answer To Damage Claims

RECENTLY your editor had the opportunity of discussing the subject of materials handling with a group of industrial traffic managers. The first hand information obtained, and the differences of opinions expressed, have only further convinced me that there are still a lot of executives who have little or no knowledge of what the term "Materials Handling" means.

When it was pointed out that every time merchandise was handled, whether in the raw state, the manufacturing process, or the finished packed product, additional costs were added to its production and final sales cost, there was an appreciation of the term "Materials Handling."

Not only are some traffic and industrial executives unenlightened on the equipment to be used for handling materials, but there seems to be a lack of knowledge regarding the proper methods of packing for storage and shipping.

There are a few large industrial plants that have gone into this subject in a very thorough manner, as described in the November "Materials Handling Forum," but there is too much "hit and miss" action being taken, with the result that damage claims placed against the shippers, and even the warehousemen, can quite frequently be traced to faulty packaging.

DandW's editorial pages in the past year, have had articles on proper packing, one in December, 1937, and another in May, 1938. Nevertheless, there still seems to be a great deal of educational work to be done along this line.

The use of various types of materials handling equipment has materially changed package requirements. In some cases, the use of this equipment has made it possible to lighten up on the type of container or package. However, it is also necessary to remember that frequently, when heavier or larger units are being handled by the mechanical equipment, than were previously possible by hand methods, that it is also often necessary to increase the strength of the package.

The Forum therefore wants to point out that in considering the use of mechanical equipment, it is essential not only to think of the handling operation, but also the type of container to be used and the method of storing.

One executive pointed out that after he had put in some mechanical equipment for materials handling, his damage claims had mounted excessively, but because of the quick turnover, he was not able to readily determine the cause of this. However, the amount represented enough in dollars and cents to cause an investigation to be made, and it was found that where previously hand trucks had been used, in narrow aisles, the use of power trucks, even in wider aisles, was causing damage to some of the containers, especially at the corners where one aisle intersected the other, due primarily to the carelessness of the operators. These power trucks were also bumping into cases and merchandise on the straightaway run, and because of the greater speed obtained under power, damage was being caused at these points also.

The above difficulty was quickly remedied by putting permanent bumpers at certain aisle intersections where traffic was heavy and by educating the equipment operators to use care and reduce speed slightly in favor of better handling.

Another one of the group who is manager of a distributing warehouse for a large industrial concern told of his experience with a sudden increase in damage claims. In this case, there had been no installation of new materials handling methods or equipment, nor had the system of transportation from warehouse to outlying stores been changed. However, the volume of damage claims jumped as much as 100 per cent, for no apparent reason.

The loss was so noticeable that it attracted the manager's attention, but it took him several weeks to find out just what the trouble was. Some of the merchandise was received from the manufacturing plants in all new cartons, while from other plants, it was received in second-hand or used cartons.

Carey, your work on wooden crates the last 20 yrs. has been so fine, I'm promoting you to card-board packages.

Certain other materials were consolidated at the warehouse, and in some cases, consolidated into used cartons, and then placed in storage. This, however, had been the practice for a number of years, so it was not at first considered as a point requiring attention.

Upon investigation it was found necessary to materially increase storage space, but no more floor space being available, and the head-room being sufficient, it was decided that on the bulk or solid stock storage floors, to increase the height of storage piles two or three cases. The increased weight of the additional pile was causing the bottom cartons to buckle under the load, and this failure of the cartons to support the upper units was causing damage to the material in the bottom cartons. The only solution of this problem was to adopt an all new carton.

It is very seldom that materials will be damaged by using mechanical equipment, but there are cases where this can occur. The fault is not with the equipment, but generally with its operation.

There are no doubt a number of instances similar to the above, and the Forum would appreciate hearing from its readers telling of their experiences of this type, and what was done to solve the problem, so that we will be in a position to pass this information along to our other readers, and in discussion groups.

The Forum is trying to act as a coordinator, and to co-operate, both with the warehousemen and the manufacturers of materials handling equipment, so that the proper use of equipment can be made in these installations, and at the same time, not find the equipment at fault when actually the method of operation or the type of container being handled is the cause of the difficulty.

By sending in to the Forum, even a short note, or letter, telling of your experiences of this type, you may be helping someone to overcome a difficult problem, and in turn, the information in our files might be of assistance to you at some future date.

Truck Pact Reached In Iowa

Tentative agreement on parts of a labor contract between truck line and storage house operators and union truck drivers, helpers, dock and warehouse workers, is reported to have been reached at Waterloo, Ia.

Tentative agreement includes a closed shop, 52½ cents an hour for drivers, helpers and shipping and receiving clerks, and 47½ cents for dock, platform and warehouse workers.

Also tentatively agreed upon were a 48-hr. week and 6 hrs. tolerance, time-and-one-half for overtime, and Sundays and holidays, and 1 week's vacation with pay for men employed by their companies for more than 1 yr.

The Des Moines drivers' scale is 57 cents.

Ford Economy Runs Reveal High Fuel Mileage

Covering a grand total of more than 95,000 miles with loads averaging 6,000 lbs., eighteen Ford V-8 134-in. wheelbase cab-over-engine trucks obtained fuel mileages ranging up to 13½ miles to the gallon in long-distance economy test runs held recently in various parts of the country, according to reports to the home offices of the Ford Motor Co. The test runs were held under the direction of Ford branches.

The highest fuel mileage of 13½ miles to the gallon was obtained on an economy run held by the Oklahoma City branch. The lowest, 8.7 miles to the gallon, was recorded on an economy run through a thickly populated area in the East.

However, 78,000 of the 95,000 miles were averaged at better than 11 miles to the gallon. Only 17,500 miles were operated at an average of less than 10 miles to the gallon.

The highest average speed, 43 m.p.h., was maintained on a run staged by the Dallas branch. The lowest average speed, 25.4 m.p.h., was recorded in the mountainous area in Pittsburgh branch territory.

Tally sheets maintained on all of the runs revealed that no oil was added between changes for the entire 95,000 miles. All the units participating in the runs were standard in every respect. Most of them were equipped with stake bodies.

Make the Institute Dream Come True

the Utah Association proves this in a remarkable manner.

The immediate formation of state councils will insure that the national Institute will not become partisan or a propagandist body for the transport industry or carriers.

The experience of the national association of practitioners is a strong argument for state groups or councils. The national conventions have been poorly attended.

State problems such as in Ohio and Missouri have caused state associations to be formed in order to protect their members.

Almost 10 yrs. were required in order to prepare an outline for a standard course of study and requirements for those who wish to prepare for practice before the I.C.C., and no doubt, this was finally done because the attorneys threatened to kick out the non-attorneys via the Wagner and O'Toole Bills route, or in the manner used in Missouri and Ohio where practice before state commissions is the right of attorneys at law only.

An American Institute of Traffic Management in 1939! It can be done if the traffic managers in every state will immediately call state conventions. The prospects for 1939 are predicated upon the interest and enthusiasm of every traffic manager in every state. The older organizations have had ample time to make the "dream" mentioned in the Galveston Traffic Club magazine come true.

In organizing state groups, members of the three national associations will be included, as well as a large number of non-members. This will guarantee that the national Institute will be representative of the entire profession.

The traffic profession in retrospect has been a profession without an educational or ethical standard. The failures and shortcomings of the members of the profession are beyond recall.

The prospects for an Institute of Traffic Management is the important question now and the answer is up to you, Mr. Traffic Manager.

The Traffic Profession in 1938 was the same as in 1928. The Traffic Profession in 1939?

1. Forty-eight state councils organized to see that a professional Institute is organized.

2. Standard courses of study for those engaged in industrial, rail and motor carrier undertakings, prepared by educators from university traffic schools and correspondence schools.

3. A national convention to make the dream of an Institute come true.

San Francisco Pioneers to Bring Labor Peace

THE machinery set up by the Master Agreement in the distribution field between the Warehousemen's Union and the Association of San Francisco Distributors to bring industrial peace to San Francisco and keep it, is being well tried in the negotiations over the basic wage rate now going on. The first work stoppage since the signing of the contract which occurred on Dec. 12 over a question of seniority in layoffs tested the powers of the adjustment board, but the dispute was successfully compromised. When an attempt was made at the San Francisco Warehouse to lay off one man out of seniority, all but eleven men at this house were called off work by the union. The adjustment board went into immediate action and by the end of the day matters were ironed out to everyone's satisfaction.

The negotiation period on the determination of the basic wage has expired and the matter is proceeding to mediation. It is anticipated that it will be necessary to take the wage issue to the final stage of arbitration. The union is asking for a basic wage of 75 cents an hour, a raise of 5 cents from the present 70 cents an hour. Employers are not willing to grant the raise. They claim that their wages now paid in the warehouse industry are up to the highest in the country and that additional concessions are not at present indicated. The Distributors' Association is collecting data on warehouse wages paid in other parts of the United States and from information already in their hands, they claim that the general average in San Francisco is 20 per cent over that of other regions. Employers are willing to leave wages as they now stand.

Since the public warehouse group is already paying the top rate of 75 cents an hour for freight handlers, they are not involved directly, but they are concerned for two reasons, according to public warehouse leaders: a general wage rate increase probably would result in additional concessions being asked of their group eventually; and the questions of vacations with pay might arise. At present, no paid vacations are granted in the public warehouse group. Vacations figure up to 2½ cents an hour additional over a year if 2 wks. with pay are granted, according to J. W. Howell of the Haslett Warehouse Co., who was on the strategy committee of the Distributors' Association and who is active in present negotiations. The fact that warehousemen in the public warehouse group do not have vacations with pay at present still leaves them ahead according to this estimate.

Despite the fact that agreement has not yet been reached in the matter of the basic wage, discussions are proceeding amicably and both sides look for a satisfactory conclusion.

In addition to the negotiations on wages, the Distributors' Association and the Union are meeting to iron out some questions on the application of seniority rules which have not yet been fully decided. Other minor points at issue are also being discussed.

With the Master Agreement in effect now for nearly 2 mos., the entire distribution industry, as well as the union, is very sanguine that the means have at last been worked out for maintaining peace on San Francisco's troubled waterfront. Since the signing of the Master Contract, peace and goodwill have prevailed with evidences on both sides that the spirit of conciliation within the provisions of the agreement will continue to prevail.

Still stronger hope for industrial peace in the West, as well as the establishment of a model procedure in employer-employee relations, is seen in the revolutionary Employers' Council which has just been formed, with the following organizations prominent in the set-up: Association of San Francisco Distributors; Waterfront Employers' Assn. of San Francisco; Draymen's Assn.; Hotel Employers' Assn. of San Francisco; Building Owners' and Managers' Assn.; Motor Car Dealers Assn. of San Francisco, Inc.; Central California Chapter Associated General Contractors of America. Roger D. Lapham, chairman of the organization committee, says that while these groups represent chiefly the wholesale field, retail employer groups have also been asked to join and are considering it.

The San Francisco Employers' Council is frankly patterned after similar organizations in Great Britain and Sweden and leaders in it admit to having taken several leaves out of the unions' books as well.

The distribution industry is represented by three members on the board of directors and the executive council: Wakefield Baker, of Baker, Hamilton and Pacific, Adrian Falk of S & W, and J. W. Howell of the Haslett Warehouse Co.

The aim of the Council, Mr. Howell points out, is to solidify the employer front with the object of maintaining industrial peace. It is understood that the Council has no present intention of using its strength to lower wages or weaken unions. Employers find themselves pretty well reconciled to the organization of manual workers. This tolerance does not extend, however, to unionization of clerical workers. The Council hopes to evolve a uniform policy of action with respect to labor matters. While, as a body, it may not initiate legislation, it is anticipated that it will not ignore politics. Possibly its first year will be a crucial one in this respect, for a Little Wagner Act will be introduced in the Legislature which opens this month, and a State Fair Labor Standards Act is also promised.

Mr. Lapham, in a written public statement immediately following the announcement of the council's formation, pointed out that "this is not only a new organization, but really is a new kind of organization." Mr. Lapham continued: "So far as I have been able to learn, the San Francisco Employers' Council is unique among employers' industrial organizations in the United States, in its plan of organization and perhaps also in its essential objectives. This is in line with the fact, now gaining national recognition, that San Francisco already has pioneered in developing means toward wholesome industrial relations and consequent industrial peace. The Employers' Council is in reality the outgrowth of all we have been able to learn in the past 20 yrs. or so."

6,832,157-Ton Sugar Quota

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace has set the sugar quota for 1939 at 6,832,157 short tons under powers conferred by the sugar act. The trade believes that this quota, corresponding on a per capita basis to the consumption in 1935 and 1936, is from 200,000 to 300,000 tons above probable U. S. consumption.

The quota will be divided as follows: domestic beet sugar, 1,584,524 short tons; mainland cane sugar, 429,553; Hawaii, 958,994; Puerto Rico, 815,810; Virgin Islands, 9,115; Philippines, 1,052,854; Cuba, 1,954,303; other foreign countries, 27,004.

Standard Brands Tests Canned Coffee Again

Standard Brands, Inc., has resumed offering its Chase & Sanborn coffee in vacuum-packed cans in several sections in a test to determine the relative popularity of the product in cans and in dated paper bags. Copy in newspapers in Texas and Oklahoma asserts that either way consumers are sure of getting the same flavor. The product in bags sells for a few cents less than in cans. The latter were replaced by bags about 3 yrs. ago.

WATERWAYS AND TERMINALS

Asks Storage Rate Ban at Portland on Crude Rubber

SUSPENSION of proposed reductions in charges for storage of imported crude rubber at Portland, Me, is asked of the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Boston Port Authority. The petition mentions two proposed tariffs, one filed by the Portland Terminal Co. and the other by the Grand Trunk Ry. system. Each of these proposes a storage rate for the first 30 days or fraction thereof of 2¾ cents per 100 lbs. and ½ cent per 100 lbs. for each succeeding 15 days or fraction thereof. They also provide for insurance at the annual rate of 45 cents. The reason assigned for the revision is a desire to make the rubber storage arrangement at Portland the same as at New London, Conn., on the Central Vermont Ry.

It is noted that the commission, in its reports on the hearing at New York on the warehousing and storage of property by carriers, condemned the storage practices of the railroads serving New York, including the so-called in-transit storage of crude rubber at rates substantially the same as these two companies propose to establish at Portland. The complainants' brief says in part:

"These carriers at Portland have a single general commodity basis of storage charges applicable on waterborne freight, including crude rubber, stored on their piers. Exception to that general basis is made in the case of such commodities as woodpulp and sulphur. They now seek to establish a further exception with respect to imported crude rubber. The basis of storage charges that they propose is, generally speaking, the same basis of storage charges of the trunk line carriers serving New York Harbor published in their terminal tariffs under the caption 'Westbound Storage In-Transit.'

"However, this storage at Portland, Me., differs from the westbound storage in-transit as performed at New York harbor on import traffic and as performed on similar traffic ex vessel at New York harbor moving west via the Central Vermont route and stored at certain points along the line of that carrier, in that transportation precedes the actual storage at the transit point and local transportation rates are charged from the original point of shipment to the transit point.

"In the case of the trunk line serving New York harbor there is usually a movement by lighter to the rail terminal at the New Jersey shore of the Hudson River. Then, in some cases, a switch movement by rail to the railroad warehouse and in other instances, the in-transit freight is stored on lighterage piers. The shipper is in all instances required to file a regular shipping order with the rail carrier.

"The storage proposed for Portland is storage on railroad piers which precedes any rail transportation. With respect to storage of that character it is obvious that rail shipping orders are not to be presented to the carrier until the goods are ready to be released from storage. The proposed reduction at Portland is, no doubt, an attempt to attract the large volume of crude rubber now moving through the Port of New York, having in mind the fact that the carriers' practices at New York harbor have been condemned and that the large receivers of rubber anticipate a ruling from the Supreme Court sustaining the order of the commission.

"In view of the commission's order in ex parte 104, Part VI, and carriers' pending appeal in the United States Supreme Court, we respectfully submit that the commission should not allow any disruption of the existing relationship between the ports until this all-important matter has been finally determined by the Supreme Court.

"The proposed rates also present a question of jurisdiction. We respectfully submit that the rail carriers serving the North Atlantic ports, including the Port of Portland, Me., act in a dual capacity in that they are common carriers by railroad in the transportation of property and passengers in interstate commerce, and, insofar as they own and operate wharves and piers in connection with interstate or foreign waterborne commerce, they are 'other persons' subject to the Shipping Act, as defined in Sec. 1 thereof. Jurisdiction rests with the U. S. Maritime Commission with respect to practices of terminal operators.

"We further submit that respondent rail carriers acting in the capacity of public utilities operating ocean terminals are subject to the provisions of Sections 15, 16 and 17 of the Shipping Act, and in view of the fact that the proposed storage arrangements are antecedent to any rail transportation and antecedent to receipts from the shipper of any shipping order, there is every reason to believe that the jurisdiction with respect to the practices complained of at Portland rests with the U. S. Maritime Commission rather than with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Petitioner contends that there is a clear line of demarcation between the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the U. S. Maritime Commission, and that all such services as are here under consideration performed by the rail carriers prior to the receipt and acceptance of shipping orders by them are subject to the jurisdiction of the U. S. Martime Commission.

"Prior to the hearing before the New England Freight Assn. a traffic executive of the Grand Trunk Ry. stressed the fact that the storage proposed at Portland, Me., is not storage in-transit but is simply pier storage, and it therefore appears to petitioner that the U. S. Maritime Commission has jurisdiction."

In any event, petitioner urges the Interstate Commerce Commission not to permit these rail carriers to extend to Portland storage practices such as have already been condemned at New York Harbor, pending a final determination of the carriers' appeal to the Supreme Court.

Shipping Federation Renews Longshoremen Contracts

THE existing labor agreement between the Shipping Federation of Canada and the International Longshoremen's Assn., Local 375, has been renewed for another year without change, it is announced by A. L. W. MacCallum, Mgr. of the Federation. The present contract with the Montreal Shipliners' Union, Local 1552, of the I.L.A. has also been renewed, again without change. The contracts are effective until Dec. 31, 1939.

Mr. MacCallum stated that the two labor organizations had indicated it was not their intention to seek any change in the existing agreements with the federation. The employers had also decided not to serve notice of termination, and in consequence both agreements covering the work of cargo handling on ocean

Birds Eye method of storing its frosted foods in warehouse rooms. The shelving and table are typical of the installations made in warehouses now being used. These rooms are on the first floor near the trucking dock.

The construction of cold storage warehouses is more scientific than formerly, and methods now used are more efficient, but some warehousemen still follow practices that account for the persistence of the first criticism against all cold storage warehouses in general.

Reference has been made to the limits beyond which storage for the purpose of manipulating prices cannot go. The limit is the very practical one of time. Economic forces are always exerting pressure to bring about the reduction of the stock in storage when the new season's product is soon to become a factor in the market. To the original cost of the stocks must be added the costs of insurance, interest, storage charges, shrinkage, and a probable depreciation of value if the stocks are held too long. All of these costs increase month by month. It is also a common practice for storage houses to make advances to owners of stocks held in storage, accepting these stocks as collateral to the loans. If there is a possibility that the old stocks will come into competition

THE STORY OF QUICK-FREEZING

By
DR. JACQUES C. MAGUITE

This fourth of a series of articles covers problems in the warehousing field. The next article will deal with transportation

FEW, if any, of the larger, well located cities in the United States lack low-temperature refrigeration facilities. Frozen meats, fish, poultry, eggs, dairy products and ice cream are now held at low temperatures in the better storage warehouses of the country, thus providing for slower autolytic changes caused by enzymes and oxidation, a fact now quite generally recognized in successful cold storage practice. Therefore, low-temperature storage is available at all distributing points for an ever-increasing volume of these quick-frozen products now being marketed.

The popular criticism of cold-storage foodstuffs is that they have been held in storage to a point of deterioration when they become neither palatable nor wholesome. Coupled with this is the belief that they are often held unduly long for the purpose of manipulating the market. That former practices justified the first criticism has been shown; that there is a basis for the second criticism cannot be denied. It may be added, however, that there are limits beyond which holding for market manipulation cannot go, which are not so well understood by the general public.

with the new stocks, a condition which naturally is bound to be to the disadvantage of the former, the warehouseman or banker is likely to call in the loans or ask for additional margins. It is apparent that this condition makes the holding over of stocks a decidedly precarious venture. It is universally agreed in trade circles that it is bad business to carry stocks over the seasonal period, as the practice is almost always attended by financial loss.

The Department of Agriculture for a number of years has been engaged in extensive research work regarding the wholesomeness and palatability of foodstuffs that have been in cold storage for various periods. It has been found that poultry, meats, fish, butter, eggs and some other products, if they are received in good condition and are properly stored, can be held from 9 to 12 mos. without appreciable loss in flavor, and for much longer periods without loss in food value or general wholesomeness.

Dealers and warehousemen now have learned that cold storage does not improve foodstuffs, but that if products are in excellent condition when placed in storage and are properly cared for while in storage, they will serve as wholesome food when withdrawn for market within certain time limits. In general, the wholesale distributors are men of large experience, who carefully safeguard the condition of the products which they handle. Another restraining influence is the fact that many, if not most commodities will not stand storage for more than one season without deterioration. When offered for sale after two seasons' holding, unaccompanied by the history of their storage, such products tend to create prejudice against all storage stocks.

Much to Be Learned

There is still much to be learned about blanching and about the proper storage temperature necessary with each and every blanch to maintain a quality product throughout a variable storage period. It should be obvious that correct blanching requires quality control, in order that the most salable, merchandisable products may be brought to the market throughout the year with the minimum cost for proper warehousing. It should also be clear that the method of treatment at the freezing plant determines the storage temperature at which the product must be held. Particularly is this true of those products which remain in storage more than 6 mos.

With advances in the science of refrigeration engineering, and especially in the modern systems of quick-freezing, a more enlightened spirit on the part of distributors, and proper care on the part of operators of cold storage houses, the cold storage industry, with the aid of constructive legislation, might be expected to solve some of the more pressing problems in the conservation of the country's food supply. If the traditional prejudice against cold storage foodstuffs were removed by modernization of the refrigeration system, much more could be done toward stabilizing both production and prices of perishable foodstuffs.

Since the principal value of quick-freezing is to make perishable products substantially imperishable it is most essential that such products shall remain in perfect condition at commercial storage temperatures for at least 9 mos. or a year. Since at present the lowest available temperatures in most cities are from 0 deg. to 5 deg. F., holding tests are based on the use of those temperatures.

In the distribution of quick-frozen sea foods it is vital that adequate storage facilities be provided throughout the country for this commodity. A temperature of 10 deg. F., or under, must be provided. A study of the statistical data provided by the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics shows us that, in the United States we have over 200 storage warehouses all of which are suitably equipped to handle the storage of quick-frozen sea foods at the right temperatures.

Instructions to Warehouses Storing Birds Eye Frosted Foods

Handling In and Out

Birds Eye products must be kept at 0° temperature as nearly as possible at all times. This fact should be borne in mind when handling goods outside freezer room, and the utmost dispatch used whenever warehouse personnel handles Birds Eye products from and to cars or trucks to and from freezer. No delay can be permitted at any time while cases are outside freezer room. In loading and unloading from refrigerator cars or trucks, no more product should be removed from carrier at a time than can be quickly put into freezer.

Temperature

All Birds Eye Foods are to be stored in sharp freezer rooms with a maximum temperature of zero degrees. It is desired that the temperature remain constant at minus five degrees, with a differential of two degrees above and/or below the accepted temperature.

Piling

In piling our shipping containers, the following procedure must be strictly adhered to:

Piling should start from the wall toward the center of the room—starting at least six inches from the wall or wall coils, if any.

Floor Racks

Place two by fours on edge (or floor racks of equal height) on the floor lengthwise in the direction of air flow as it circulates—usually at right angles to the length of the coils.

Space Between Cases

In stacking cases on floor racks and above, allow one inch space between each two adjacent cases.

Dunnage

Between every other layer of cases place dunnage not less than one-half inch thick and not more than four inches wide. In addition to using two by fours for floor racks, two by fours should be placed through the middle of the pile half way up in height.

All dunnage and/or floor racks must extend beyond the bottom cases in a horizontal row or vertical pile, respectively, for at least one-half inch of the ends of said dunnage and/or floor racks. Otherwise bottoms of cases will crush down over the ends and thus reduce the space between the cases, which will deter proper air circulation.

Height of Piles

The distance between the top of the pile and bottom of the ceiling coils, must not be less than one third the thickness of the sealing coil group, and in no instance any nearer than eighteen inches from the ceiling.

Aisles

In building up piles from the wall to the center of the room, ample aisle space should be allowed, aisles running parallel with the overhead coils and main aisles preferably under the center bank of ceiling coils.

If the distance from the side wall to the center aisle is greater than six feet, make a three inch separation between the cases halfway between the side wall and center aisle. In no instance pile cases solidly from side wall to center aisle without three inch separations at least every six feet.

Don'ts

Do not pile our cases near opening to stair or elevator wells or other non-refrigerated spaces. Piles of our cases should be kept at least five feet away from such spaces, and a greater distance if temperature readings indicate that our standard temperatures are not being maintained at these points.

Do not store unrefrigerated goods in the same room with Birds Eye Foods.

Exception—Storing of Poultry

Poultry should be piled in solid blocks, with no dunnage or air space between cases, but should be placed on floor racks and away from the freezer room walls in the standard manner.

Defrosting Coils

When defrosting coils by scraping, a tarpaulin must be placed over piles of our product and directly under coils to prevent the frost and ice from falling on cases.

Frozen by air blast system at the warehouse of the Gresham Berry Growers, Inc., Gresham, Ore.

These statistics show that in 29 large cities there is available some 44,450,826 cu. ft. of storage space at temperatures of 10 deg. F. or below. The total, estimated for the country, is given at close to 80 million cubic feet of space, showing the heavy concentration in these large cities. Some of the western and middle-west States do not have any storage space at this temperature. With 130 companies located in 29 large cities we are again impressed with the fact that there is room for greater expansion in the outlying districts.

Truck Wage Scale Settles K. C. Strike

The Highway Carriers Assn. and the truck drivers union Dec. 15 reached an agreement which settled the difficulties that have practically halted transport truck operation out of Kansas City, Mo., for some weeks. Three contracts were signed, affecting some 2,500 men.

One was an 11-state agreement, to which a rider was attached permitting a lower wage scale under certain conditions peculiar to Kansas City operations. Drivers will receive 2¾ cents a mile on through runs unless there is 2-man operation, in which case the driver gets 2¼ cents and the helper-driver 1¾ cents a mile. Allowances for pickup and delivery time is a new feature. The agreement means a ½-cent increase for drivers. The 11-state contract and the rider made up two of the three contracts. The third affects city drivers, and granted increases to drivers of from 5 to 7½ cents an hour. It provides for a 9-hr. day, 6-day week, and guarantee of a 40-hr. week to regular employees. Over-the-road drivers get a minimum of 6 hrs. a day, maximum of 60 hrs. a week. Contracts were effective on signature. The 11-state document and its rider run to Oct. 31, 1939, the other to March 1, 1940.

Negotiations started in September. A permanent committee to handle contract disputes between union and operators is provided. If local union and operator fail to agree, the matter goes to a state committee made up of an equal number of operators and union men. Failure here sends the matter to the permanent 11-state area committee, after which the problem must go to arbitration. A similar setup will handle city disputes.

Holds Texas Operation in Defiance of State Not Bona Fide

Some of the I.C.C.'s ideas about a bona fide truck operator, within the meaning of the Motor Carrier Act, have been upset in a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, handed down by Justice Butler in the A. E. McDonald vs. Ernest O. Thompson case. This decision in effect places carriers operating in Texas under injunctions against the state and the railroad commission outside the protection of the Federal law. It appears that the decision against McDonald turns on the point of "defiance" of state laws rather than absence of "compliance." If this deduction maintains, then the decision does not upset the I.C.C.'s principle, laid down in the Slagle case, that bona fide operation is not contingent necessarily on compliance with state laws. On the other hand, however, the I.C.C. stated definitely in the case of the Coleman Brothers Transfer Co., Dallas, that operation by the injunctive method in Texas did not preclude a carrier from receiving a clean bill of health as an interstate carrier.

McDonald contended the Texas law of 1931 requiring truck operators to hold certificates of public convenience and necessity from the rail commission was superseded by the federal statute, under which he claims right to a "grandfather" certificate covering operations in Texas.

In its decision, the Supreme Court left unanswered the question of federal and state jurisdiction explaining that in view of the finding that McDonald's defiance of state authorities voided his claim to protection under the federal law, "we need not consider to what extent, if at all, the Federal Motor Carrier Act superseded the state Motor Truck Law, or any other question presented by petitioner."

The court stated, however, the requirement of the federal act that "grandfather" applicants must have been "in bona fide operation," implied recognition by Congress of the power of a state to prohibit or condition the use of its highways.

McDonald had operated his trucks in 1934, prior to the enactment of the federal law in 1935. He was denied a state certificate in July, 1934, on the ground that his operations would burden the highways excessively and thus interfere with ordinary use by the public. McDonald's suit was upheld in the first court and then reversed in the Circuit Court of Appeals, which, however, did not disturb the district court's finding that his operations had been bona fide.

His "grandfather" application, filed seasonably with the I.C.C., is still pending. In this regard, it is pointed out in an editorial appearing in Transport Topics that the Motor Carrier Act gives the Commission authority to grant or deny "grandfather clause" certificates and permits. In porforming this duty, the I.C.C., not the courts, must determine the question of "bona fide" operation on the applicable date. The Court passed on the question and the point is, what will happen if the I.C.C., acting under statutory mandate, should find otherwise?

FROM The Capital

Court Considers "Worth" in Rail-Warehouse Case

THE Supreme Court has taken under advisements the arguments pro and con on the question whether carriers may furnish storage service "below cost," provided the charges are not "less than reasonable worth."

This mooted question moved into the high court after railroads had been reversed in their contention that "worth" is the proper criterion. To aid them in their decision, the Supreme Court justices have records of arguments made before them in a session running into 2 days.

Arguing for the carriers, Edwin H. Burgess, counsel, contended that the Interstate Commerce Commission's order is void as to the carriers' leases of space to shippers because the basic finding upon which it rests—that the rentals in the leases are less than "cost" and therefore constitute "concessions" —is insufficient in law to support the order.

The only basic finding by the Commission as to leases is, he insisted, that the rental reserved is below the cost to the railroad of providing the facilities leased. There are no other relevant findings, he alleged, and, there is no finding that the rental reserved in any of the appellants' leases was less than the fair and reasonable rental value of the leasehold interest.

On the other hand, counsel for the warehousemen, A. Lane Cricher, for the American Warehousemen's Assn., and Judge John J. Hickey, counsel for the Warehousemen's Protective Committee, contended the carriers' purposes, in performing commercial warehousing for certain shippers, or leasing space to them without regard to cost, is to purchase traffic, which results in line haul rate rebates, a practice which the Commission may enjoin.

With respect to this practice, private warehousemen contended that "in performing these commercial warehousing services or leasing storage facilities are clearly to prefer certain shippers, to discriminate against the private warehousemen, also shippers, and thus to 'grab traffic' and compete with one another."

"The complaining private warehousemen claim that a large part of the value of their facilities has been confiscated and destroyed by these appellants' traffic grabbing practices—engaging in these commercial warehousing activities at less than cost—and the Commission found that the testimony and exhibits introduced by these private warehousemen, which showed that they have lost business in practically every form of warehousing to appellants' affiliated and storage companies stand absolutely unrefuted," they contended.

Debating the warehousemen's charges of "concessions," Burgess termed as "fundamental fallacy," the decisions of both the district court and the Commission that held that there can be such a thing as a concession to a shipper that will cut the published tariff rates of his transportation in violation of section 6 without a finding that the shipper really got something of value for which he did not adequately pay.

He argued: "It is not what it may cost the carrier to give to the shipper what he got, but rather what the thing given was reasonably worth at the time and how that worth compares with what the shipper paid, that are significant. If the recipient is found to have given less than the fair value of the thing received, then in truth has something been conceded to him. But until it is found as a fact that what the recipient got from the railroad exceeded in value what he gave in exchange the recipient plainly has no excess value that he can apply as a credit against the tariff rates, and the indispensable element of a concession is wanting."

Answering this declaration, the warehousemen cite the case of the American Dock Terminal and Pouch Stores at Staten Island, as follows:

"By performing the commercial warehousing services, handling, storage and insurance below cost in these leased facilities, in 1931, the B. & O. found the result was a net loss averaging $2.48 per ton at American Dock, and $2.26 per ton at Pouch Stores on the goods so stored. At present the total loss to the B. & O. in connection with the traffic handled in these facilities, stored for 1 yr., and handled out, amounts to $4.53 per ton, and this loss is absorbed out of this appellant's rates for the line hauled transportations of the rubber stored, such line haul rate being, to a typical destination, $8 per ton. On each ton of freight insured at these leased facilities at the 8-cent per $100 of value rate, the B. & O. absorbs or pays about 7 cents more.

"This concession from the line haul rate is clearly a rebate and is prohibited under the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act."

The issue in the case, it is generally agreed, goes far beyond the question immediately raised, for the reason that it may have important bearing in tariff fixing of various types. No guidance may be expected for several weeks, due to the heavy docket with which the high court has been struggling since the current session began.

I.C.C. Outlaws Personal Bonds in Motor Act

The I.C.C. has amended Rule 6 of its insurance regulations to provide that individual or personal surety bonds filed by truck operators for the protection of the public no longer will be acceptable. Such security in the future must be vested in corporations only.

Up to the present time only a small number of individual or personal surety bonds have been submitted by carriers and brokers, states the commission:

"Due to our lack of facilities for maintaining at long range the close supervision needed properly to protect the public interest on instruments secured by ownership of real estate and personal property vested in individuals, we have reached the conclusion that the administrative difficulties presented with respect to acceptance and approval of this form of surety bond are such as to justify the conclusion that effective control thereof could not be exercised.

"Inquiries made by us as to the character of protection afforded by surety bonds with individual (personal) sureties disclose that they are much less desirable than the corporate form of bond, since over a period of years it has frequently been found that the real and personal property, to which ownership by the sureties was certified, has later been disposed of by sale or transfer and, in some instances, has become involved in litigation because of the death of the sureties."

Citing that in most instances, liability arising out of motor carrier operations "is of a continuing nature, and court actions in which claimants become involved, are frequently pending for a number of years," the Commission continued:

"If the public is to receive the protection contemplated by the sections of the Act referred to (211-c and 215), it is essential that the character of security furnished by motor carriers and brokers be such as will not expose judgment creditors to uncertainty and further litigation in obtaining satisfaction.

"Bonds, with individual (personal) sureties appear to be deficient in this respect, and this, coupled with the administrative difficulties involved, convinces us that it would be inadvisable to approve this form of security."

I.C.C. Modifies Safety Rule for Trucks

The Interstate Commerce Commission, division No. 5, has issued an order in which it holds that the safety provisions, prescribed in a previous order relating to common and contract carriers are not applicable to these carriers within metropolitan areas as prescribed by the commission.

The commission expresses its opinion that local laws governing the operation of motor carriers within a metropolitan area are adequate to insure safety of operation.

I.C.C. Considers Day for Drivers

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has taken under consideration an industry request that the authorized workday for truck drivers be increased from 10 to 12 hrs., and that the maximum spread be changed from 60 hrs. per week to 120 hrs. in 2 weeks.

Organized labor continued its vigorous assault on the proposal in the face of warnings by firms that they may be forced out of business by the I.C.C. schedule, thereby increasing unemployment among drivers. The Commission seemed more interested in the obvious fact that a speed-up, with attendant traffic hazard, is likely to result from the shortened workday.

The views of the industry were placed on record last month in hearings before the Commission. J. Ninian Beall, general counsel for the American Trucking Associations, Inc., who championed the operators' contentions, made the following recommendation: That driving time be extended from 10 to 12 hrs., with the right to spread 120 hrs. over a 2-week period, instead of being limited to 60 hrs. a week; that driver's log be eliminated with respect to local cartage operations; elimination of 20-minute rule, under which short stops are counted as actual driving time; and redefining of "work" to avoid the inclusion of responsibility and waiting time in the daily working time.

Beall argued that the 10-hr. regulation, as set by the Commission, represented a maximum "without flexibility" and "is contrary in every respect and all experience in safety work. The experience of the industry in promoting safety has been to avoid what the 10-hr. rule makes mandatory. The uncontradicted testimony of all operator witnesses and all safety engineer witnesses was to the effect that flexibility in schedules and hours is absolutely necessary to promote safety."

The industry's excellent safety record is accomplished by avoidance of maximum hour limitations, and by concentrating on selection of personnel, establishment of top speeds and longer hours when necessary, he said.

In addition to the safety arguments, another major fact to be taken into consideration, Beall said, is the added expense to operators under the 10-hr. requirement. He compared the 1 and 2 per cent profit that carriers earn to the estimated 10 to 50 per cent extra expense that would have to be absorbed.

The witness stated that the request for amending the regulations to allow a spread of 120 hrs. over 2 weeks was made particularly on behalf of carriers performing seasonal work which necessarily must perform operations when work is available. Services in this class, he said, are oil field haulers, furniture movers, automobile hauling and steel transporters. Unless relief is provided this type of service, there is a danger that interstate carriers will lose their business to intrastate carriers which are exempt from I.C.C. regulations, he contended.

Seeking exemption of requirements with respect to maintenance of drivers' log in local cartage operations, the A.T.A. counsel pointed out that such work requires a reasonable amount of driving and numerous stops which, if required to be entered in the log, would place an unnecessary burden on carriers.

Discussing the 20-minute rule the industry spokesman contended that by adding short stops to driving time would defeat the purpose of the regulations. Short stops for relaxation and inspection of their vehicles should be encouraged, he said, but if stops are made and charged to driving time, faster driving will be a necessity as driving must be done to check-in before the limit on driving time is reached.

Edward S. Brashears, representing the Household Goods Carriers Bureau, supported Beall and urged wider flexibility of the I.C.C. regulations.

Spokesman for the American Federation of Labor, Joseph Padway, general counsel, upheld the 10-hr. rule laid down by the Commission as essential to safe operations, and demanded that it be enforced despite the threat of forcing operators to retire from business. That the carriers would have to bear additional expenses was conceded by the labor representative, but he denied that the increased costs would amount to the levels estimated by the carriers.

The assertion that the 10-hr. restriction would have a drastic effect, particularly on motor carriers operating in 11 western states was made by E. M. Berol, who represented the Truck Owners Association of California and several carrier groups in the Pacific Coast area, when he asked for the 12-hr.-day rule.

F. H. Rawlins, of the Texas Motor Transportation Assn., cited traffic regulations in the Lone Star State and contended that it would be a physical impossibility for carriers to comply with the shorter workday. He called attention to the distance between major cities in the state which range from 210 to 240 miles, and that under the state's speed limit of 25 m.p.h., trucks could not complete such runs in the specified time, he said.

One witness told the Commission that since promulgation of the I.C.C. regulations, the Wisconsin operators have discontinued the division points and now use sleeper cabs on the theory that the federal regulation supersedes the state statute.

Institute of Traffic Managers an Immediate Need

THE formation of an institute for traffic managers of all classes should be done immediately and if the traffic clubs or the National Industrial Traffic League fail to do so I think that concerted action should be taken by those interested to form such an institute. I do not see how the N. I. T. League can refuse to propose such an institute; in my opinion it will be very foolish for them to do otherwise but to advocate and take active part in the formation of such an institute.

The need of such an institute is so pronounced now that failure to protect the profession will prove to be a disastrous thing.—W. G. Burnette, Traffic Manager, Traffic Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, Lynchburg, Va.

Urges Reader Letters to Traffic Group Committees

THE writer is much pleased to report the receipt of a reply from Edward F. Lacey, executive secretary of the National Industrial Traffic League, in regard to the action of that organization toward the proposal of formulating an Institute of Traffic Management.

Mr. Lacey advises that their executive committee, in giving consideration of the matter, referred same to a subcommittee consisting of Messrs. L. Z. Whitbeck, General traffic manager, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 420 Lexington Ave., New York City, T. C. Burwell, vice-president and traffic manager, A. E. Staley Manufacturing Co., P.O. Box 151, Decatur, Ill., and A. J. Sevin, general traffic manager, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., 2303 Grant Building, Pittsburgh.

That committee was directed to give the subject further consideration and report back at a later date and announcement to that effect was made to the membership recently at New York City.

It would, therefore, be advisable, and I recommend that all persons, principally traffic managers and traffic department managers who subscribe to the DandW magazine, be requested to write one or more of the members of the above subcommittee of the National Industrial Traffic League, giving all encouragement to the proposed organization of an American Institute of Traffic Management and offer every cooperation possible.

There are perhaps a few in this highly technical unrecognized profession who are prone to slide along on the glory and reputation of predecessors and others, but no profession can be found which requires any greater degree of constant alertness and continued thought and study than an efficient traffic manager.

Then why not capitalize on a knowledge which requires so much experience and study to attain and which is maintained through continued experience and study, by banding ourselves together to uphold our position among men in professional lines as other professions have done, which without doubt will build up a standard of nearest excellence admired and inspired by all of us who have that remaining amount of ambition.

There are "Jacklegs" and chiselers in every profession and there are thousands today gracing their signatures with the title of Traffic Manager who have no more idea or knowledge of efficient traffic management than a hog knows about Sunday, and many industrial establishments are influenced and kept in ignorance of the value of efficient traffic management by such persons.

There should be a great demand for capable and efficient traffic managers far in excess of the supply and that demand will necessitate an educational program in industry to prove the value and necessity thereof.

Necessity causes and encourages invention, but no matter how great the necessity, the demand must be reached and satisfied through some form of salesmanship, thus it behooves us as traffic managers to elevate and maintain that degree of efficiency in our profession and by united effort cause that title to symbolize efficient and expert knowledge in transportation.

Traffic managers really have something to sell industry and industry is demanding efficient traffic management but "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," therefore the burden of the proof must rest in a Transportation Institute where industry can receive bona fide assurance of efficiency and capability.—H. Deane Morrow, Traffic Manager, Hillyard Sales Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

If We Have a C.P.A., Why Not a "Traffic-or"?

SUGGEST putting to vote a name to use, i.e., C.P.A. for Certified Public Accountant. One that is short as possible and still carrying weight. Real estate men have "Realtor"; C.T.M. for Certified Traffic Management—(Traffic/or.)—(Traffic-or).—Harry O. Williams, T.M., Hoff-Brau Brewing Corp., Fort Wayne, Ind.

T.M.'s Unappreciated by Executives, Says Sicilia

I HAVE read with great interest the two articles in your September and October, 1938, issues, namely; "Have you a forgotten Department" by F. A. Keeling.

Mr. Keeling has presented to the owners and executives of businesses a condition that actually exists today, and he has shown them how easy it would be to correct this uncalled for condition.

For 13 yrs. (prior to Oct. 1, 1935) I was a traffic manager, and I know that executives of business do not appreciate the importance of having a qualified traffic manager and an "up to the minute" traffic department. They have always considered it an additional overhead, and it takes a great deal of labor to show them that it is essential to their doing business. The position of a traffic manager is as important as any other position in an organization. Every executive of an organization needs the assistance of the traffic manager—he is an adjunct to—

1—The sales department.

2—The purchasing department.

3—The credit department.

4—The operation and manufacturing department.

5—The foreign department—Import and export.

Your Editor, Mr. Spooner, is to be congratulated, and some steps should be taken to either preserve these two articles or you should continue to stress the importance of forming an American Institute of Traffic Management.

I am deeply interested in the recognition by industry of this important profession, because today I have an interest in several large Trucking companies, and in my position as vice-president in charge of traffic and sales, I am in daily contact with traffic managers, purchasing agents and shipping room clerks. I am located at Chicago, Ill., and would like to do my part in helping foster such an Institute.—Anthony E. Sicilia, Bates Motor Transport Lines, Inc., Chicago.

Another Booster for John Simon

LIKE many others whose letters I read in DandW, I, too, have been looking forward to further articles in your publication by John Simon.

I think I can boast (or should I admit) that I have read every issue of DandW and I am frank to say I think Mr. Simon's articles are worthy of your very fine pages. His stories are filled with meat for the warehouseman and substantial food for the storer who finds warehousing the backbone of his distribution policy.

In my various contacts I have found that these contributions have been of great value to many warehousemen and shippers throughout the country. Mr. Simon has a large fund of first-hand knowledge, and his manner in getting the story across is highly interesting.—H. E. Smith, St. Louis Mart, Inc., St. Louis, Mo.

Eyres Purchases Business of Roosevelt Transfer

The Eyres Transfer & Storage Co., Seattle, Wash., now observing its 50th anniversary, has purchased the business of the Roosevelt Transfer & Storage Co. and leased the 6-story steel and concrete warehouse of that company at 1017 E. 40th St., at the edge of the university district of Seattle. The new acquisition has been named the Eyres-Roosevelt warehouse. The lease is for 5 yrs. and provides for options of renewal, or purchase of the storage structure.

This building will be headquarters for the Aero Mayflower moving service, of which Eyres is exclusive Seattle representative.

King Heads N. Y. State Warehouse Group

Ray M. King was elected president of the New York State Warehousemen's Assn. at its annual meeting Nov. 4 at Syracuse, N. Y. D. W. Bailey will serve as the new secretary-treasurer; and Joseph W. Glenn as vice-president.

Directors include the following: A. C. Rice, Elmira; S. E. Kerr, Binghamton; Louis Schramm, Jr., New York City; Raymond Schramm, Mount Vernon; Carl Schuman, Syracuse; J. H. Smith, Utica; D. L. Tilly, New York City; M. Wilson, Buffalo; W. T. Bostwick, New York City; W. H. Coleman, Utica; E. J. Costich, Rochester; W. E. Cramer, New York City; E. S. Dayer, Buffalo; W. H. Evans, White Plains; Barrett C. Gilbert, New York City; John Glenn, Buffalo; and A. M. Kenlon, New Rochelle.

Two local associations have joined the state group, namely, the Certified Warehouses, Inc., of Westchester County and the Movers and Warehousemen's Assn. of Greater New York.

In a discussion of the new motor truck law, all members expressed the opinion that the important matter was to file a tariff on a uniform basis and that the Bureau or instrumentality through which this tariff was to be filed was secondary. Some members definitely expressed their intention to select their own Bureau, although all agreed to the need of uniformity in the tariff rates. Louis Schramm, Jr., made a motion, unanimously passed, that a committee be appointed on intrastate moving with instructions to confer with the Steering Committee selected at the meeting of carriers held Oct. 9 in Syracuse and with any other interest, looking to the general coordination of the industry. R. M. King was made chairman of this committee.

Cal. Mover Groups In Joint Conference

Representatives of four movers' groups in California met last month in Los Angeles in a joint committee to discuss costs, an additional classification of truck sizes, and the division of the state into three cost territories as proposed by G. L. Malquist, engineer of the State Railroad Commission. The organizations were: United Independent Van and Warehousemen's Assn. represented by R. P. Dix and other officers, the California Van & Storage Assn., San Francisco Movers' Assn. and Alameda County Draymen's Assn. J. B. Barker of the San Francisco Movers' Assn. represented that body and, on invitation, the Alameda group. Other leaders in the conference were C. H. Sexsmith of Lyon Van & Storage and J. W. Kendall of Bekins' Van and Storage.

All the four associations named have made or are making very exhaustive cost studies which will be included in a single exhibit to be presented at scheduled hearings of the Railroad Commission starting Jan. 10.

Following complaints of certain operators, chiefly from rural areas of California, the Engineer of the Commission made a study which was recently completed, and as a result of which, warehousemen fear an attempt may be made to lower costs unjustifiably. It is hoped to prove, by the cost surveys made by the associations named, that the Commission's costs are too low in many respects.

Mr. Barker met with the joint committee in Los Angeles in an attempt to get unified action from all four associations in presenting their case.

Dunham & Reid Wins $17,000 Suit

Dunham & Reid, New York City, was sued by Antoinette Sherri for about $17,000 for claimed loss of part of contents of two packages. The trial in the Supreme Court, County of New York, ended on Dec. 1, 1938, with a verdict by a jury in favor of the warehouse. The law and facts in the case are of interest. An appeal is pending and the case will be discussed in DandW by the trial attorney as soon as the appeal is terminated. Abraham Kadanoff of the office of Charles S. Hoff tried the case for the warehouse.

Coca-Cola Co., as pictured in an article appearing in Fortune, spent $7,000,000 for advertising in 1937, had sales grossing $283,000,000 and a net income of $24,680,000. Net income, incidentally, was nearly twice that for 1929. This 52-yr. old company was sold by the Candler interests to Ernest Woodruff in 1919 for $25,000,000. Some 1,900 wholesalers distribute the beverage to about 100,000 fountain operators. This part accounts for nearly 30 per cent of the sales in the United States. The remaining sirup is billed through six "parent bottlers" to 1,100 independent bottlers, selling to 1,100,000 dealers who sell to the public. Current competitors number about seventy. Of these, it is held that only two are of much significance insofar as actual competition is concerned. A third competitor is Dr. Pepper, excluded from the first group because its name is in no way suggestive of Coca-Cola. Pepsi-Cola is one of the most vigorous rivals of Coca-Cola. Sales of Pepsi-Cola, however, are believed not to exceed one-tenth of Coca-Cola and are best in the larger cities.

Austin Nichols Co. Out of Food Field

Acquisition of the grocery inventory, brands, labels and some other food assets of Austin Nichols & Co. has been made by Francis H. Leggett & Co. The sale will permit Austin Nichols & Co. to concentrate its activity upon and further develop its business in beer, wine and liquor, which for the first 6 mos., ended Oct. 31, was running 20 per cent ahead of the comparable period of 1937.

The announcement of the company pointed out that the grocery end of its business has been curtailed because it had been proving unprofitable. No definite figure was given as to the amount of money involved in the transaction, but it was stated that the grocery inventory was disposed of to the Leggett company at replacement cost, and no inventory losses were expected to result from the sale. It was estimated as being only 3 per cent of the company's inventory.

The sale takes from the wholesale grocery field one of the "Big Four" for many years identified with the food trade throughout the country. Austin Nichols & Co. was incorporated in 1919, succeeding to the business and the assets of a corporation of the same name which was formed in 1912 in New York.

Francis H. Leggett & Co., another of the "Big Four," was organized in 1870 and incorporated in 1902. In its transaction with Austin Nichols & Co., the Leggett company acquires several well-known grocery brands, including "Sun-Beam" which Austin Nichols has featured as its private label on its grocery products.

Small Scale Sugar Refining Now Possible

Applied Sugar Laboratories, Inc., chemical research subsidiary of American Molasses Co. and the Sucrest Co., announces the development of a small sugar refining unit suitable for installation in plants of food manufacturers who use granulated or liquid sugar.

The unit, which is said to make small scale sugar refining possible for the first time, produces no by-products in the operation, and eliminates loss of sugar which heretofore prevented such refining.

Jergens Co. Plant in Belleville, N. J.

The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, maker of pharmaceutical and toilet products, will establish a million dollar plant in Belleville, N. J., next to Newark. The site now occupied by the Belleville Copper Rolling Mills will be used tentatively which will be in full production by 1940.

Pool Car Shipments of Paper Increasing

Representatives of Eastern railroads, steamship lines, trucking companies and freight forwarders who attended the second annual meeting and dinner of the Delaware Valley Paper Shippers' Assn. in Philadelphia were told that pool car shipments of paper and paper specialties have been increasing throughout the country.

One of the most novel schedules yet presented by any of the similar associations is that now being distributed by the Delaware group. In a three-fold piece, the pool car destinations, departures, arrivals, rates and distribution costs are indicated by means of a sliding scale and cut-out windows in which the various items appear. Daniel Bustraan of the Paterson Parchment Paper Co. was elected president. Thirty-two paper concerns are members.

FROM THE LEGAL VIEWPOINT

Are Warehousemen and Common Carriers Bailees?

LEGAL EDITOR, DandW: What is a bailment contract? Are warehousemen and common carriers bailees?—Whitfield Storage and Trucking Co.

Answer: A bailment is an act of placing goods in custody of another for safe-keeping. There are two general classifications of bailments, but the general class in which warehousemen are interested is the kind in which the bailee receives compensation for services rendered. Under these circumstances the bailee is required by law to exercise ordinary care to prevent injury to or loss of the goods. However, if the bailee receives nothing for his services, then he is not liable for loss of or injury to the goods unless his gross negligence resulted in the loss.

The liability of certain types of carriers, as a private carrier is similar to that of paid bailees. However, common carriers are in a sense insurers of goods which they accept for transportation, therefore common carriers are not bailees. While common carriers have the duty of safeguarding shipped merchandise, yet such merchandise is not placed especially in the care of the common carrier for safe-keeping, but for being transported. See the following cases: 21 S.W. (2d) 207; 170 N.E. 551; 195 Atl. 475; 72 Pac. (2d) 61; and 1 N.E. (2d) 17.

Guilty for Fire Loss When Watchman Neglects Duty

LEGAL EDITOR, DandW: When, and under what circumstances, is a warehouseman liable for loss of or injury to stored goods by fire? If a warehouseman pays a night watchman who neglects his duty, is the warehouseman liable in damages for losses resulting from a fire? Please cite late higher court cases so that we can refer the same to our attorney. —Plainville Warehouse Co.

Answer: Various courts have held that a warehouseman is not liable in damages for loss of stored goods resulting from fire, unless the testimony indicates conclusively that the loss resulted from negligence on the part of the warehouseman or his employees. Therefore, if stored goods are destroyed by fire as a result of a night watchman neglecting his duty, it is my opinion that the warehouseman is liable. See following cases: 111 S.W. (2d) 867; 287 S.W. 931; 109 S. 20; 297 S.W. 670; 116 So. 378; 6 S.W. (2d) 1086.

Not Liable for Goods Missing from Unlocked Trunk

LEGAL EDITOR, DandW: On May 27, 1938, we stored a small trunk of personal effects for a lady. The trunk was picked up by one of our drivers, who was informed at the time that the trunk was not locked. The driver did not so inform us of this, and because of the fact that it was not called to our attention, and the trunk looked as if it were locked, we placed same in storage. We were never asked for a warehouse receipt, and no warehouse receipt was made. On Sept. 22, 1938, we had a 'phone call from the lady asking that the trunk be delivered to a residence. Soon afterwards the lady sued us for $172.90, claiming that several articles were missing from the trunk.

Will you supply me with new cases to assist my attorney?—Robinson Warehouse & Storage Co.

Answer: Obviously, you are not liable for loss of stored merchandise unless the testimony indicates that such loss resulted from your negligence. If the driver acted as your legal agent, and failed to inform you that the trunk was not locked, then, of course, you would be required to exercise a higher degree of care than if the trunk had been securely locked. However, the owner of the trunk must prove that articles which she claims are missing actually were in the trunk when you accepted it for storage and also that these articles were missing when the trunk was returned to her. The important legal questions are: (1) Were the articles in the trunk when you accepted it for storage; (2) Were the articles removed from the trunk while it was in your possession; (3) Did the loss result from negligence of your employees?

Under any and all circumstances a warehouseman is required by law to exercise the same degree of care to safeguard stored goods as would have been exercised by other reasonably careful and prudent warehousemen under the identical circumstances. This Month's Important Higher Court Decisions

What Is Conversion?

VARIOUS higher courts have held that conversion is any act of dominion wrongfully exerted over another's personal property in denial of or inconsistent with his rights therein. Therefore, a warehouseman is liable for conversion (1) if he sells stored goods to recover storage charges without complying strictly with state laws regarding advertising the intended sale, and sending notification, to the owner, of the intended sale; (2) or, if he converts to his own use, or sells, the stored goods without authority of the owner; (3) or, if he delivers stored goods on a forged receipt; (4) or, if he refuses to give possession of the goods to the owner upon proper and legal demand.

On the other hand, it is important to know that neither a warehouseman nor other bailee is liable for conversion although he refuses to permit the owner to take possession of a portion of a lot of merchandise on which the owner refuses to pay storage charges.

For example, in Gruber v. Pacific Co., 80 Pac. (2d) 153, it was shown that a state law provides:

"Every person who, while lawfully in possession of an article of personal property renders any service to the owner thereof, by labor or skill, employed for the . . . safekeeping, . . . thereof, has a special lien thereon, dependent on possession, for the compensation . . . for such service."

The owner of equipment entered into an agreement with the owner of a vacant building whereby the latter took possession of the equipment for safekeeping. The owner failed to pay the agreed storage charges and the owner of the building, in which the equipment was stored, refused to permit him to take possession of a part of the equipment. The owner of the equipment sued the owner of the building for conversion. It is interesting to know that the higher court refused to hold the latter liable, and said:

"Our examination of the case satisfied us that there was no evidence of a conversion as that term is defined in authorities . . . For the reasons given there is no evidence of conversion of any portion of plaintiff's property. If plaintiff had a cause of action for some liability arising after the claim of lien, he has failed to prove it."

On the other hand, several higher courts recently have held warehousemen liable for conversion because of an actual interference with the ownership of stored goods, by an actual taking of the goods, by dealing with a negotiable bill of lading representing the goods, and by the unlawful use of legal process to obtain possession of the goods. See Dodge v. Meyer, 61 Cal. 405; McCaffey Co. v. Bank of America, 294 P. 45; Poggi v. Schott, 139 P. 815, 51 L.R.A., N.S., 925; Vagim v. Haslett Warehouse Co., 20 P. (2d) 992.

Now, let us consider another phase of law relating to a bailor and bailee, as when the bailee, or warehouseman, does not retain possession of the goods on which he claims a lien. Under these circumstances the warehouseman forfeits his right to a lien, unless he can peacefully regain possession of the goods.

Then again, in States where laws do not clearly give liens to ordinary bailees, the latter cannot hold goods to secure payment of storage charges although possession is peacefully regained. For example, where a garage keeper agrees to store a car of a customer at a monthly rate, and to permit the owner to take the car out and return it at his will, it has been held that, in the absence of a state statute giving the keeper a lien, he has no lien for storage charges. (6 Am. Jur., secs. 274, 278.)

Liability for Conversion

IT is a well-established present law that a warehouseman is liable to the owner for full value of the goods converted. The old cases held that the measure of damages for conversion was ordinarily the value of the property at the time of conversion; but the palpable injustice in cases of property of fluctuating value induced the recent courts to adopt the rule that if the case be prosecuted with reasonable diligence, the owner may recover the highest market value of such property between the time of conversion and the time of trial.

For example, in Kvame v. Simcoe Warehouse Co., 281 N.W. 52, the owner of stored goods introduced testimony tending to prove that a warehouseman converted the goods to his own use in September. However, the owner did not learn of the conversion until July of the following year, and he promptly filed suit against the warehouseman.

It is important to know that the higher court held the owner entitled to recover from the warehouseman the highest market value of the merchandise between the date of the conversion and the date when the case was tried. This court explained that the owner of goods converted by a warehouseman is entitled to establish the highest market value of the goods by any authentic testimony.

Also, see Heaton v. Hoerr, etc., 66 N.D. 430, where a warehouseman sold goods to satisfy a lien for storage without complying with the provisions of the statute regarding sending written notice to the owner and advertising the intended sale with description of the goods. The court held that failure of the warehouseman to comply with the provisions of the state law resulted in the owner being entitled to recover from the warehouseman full value of the goods.

Warehousemen Not Subject to Taxation

IT is a settled rule in the interpretation of revenue and tax laws that, in case of doubt as to their application, the construction must be in favor of the taxpayer and against the taxing authorities. Therefore, unless a state taxation law clearly includes warehousemen, the latter are not subject to payment of the specified taxes.

For instance, in Bedford, State Treasurer et al. v. Johnson et al., 78 P. (2d) 373, a state law was litigated which provides that there shall be levied a tax equivalent to two (2) per cent of the value of services rendered or performed by any person engaged in any of eighty listed businesses including automobile rent storage garages; parking lots; depositories; and "any other business of a similar nature" in which services are performed on a price or fee basis.

The general warehousing business was not included by name in this law, but it was contended by the taxing authorities that by implication all warehousemen were subject to payment of the tax.

The controlling question to be determined was whether the general warehouse storage business is sufficiently analogous to the business of "automobile rent storage garages," "parking lots" or "depositories," to bring warehousemen business within the act by implication.

The court held otherwise, and said:

"It is perfectly obvious that, had the Legislature desired to tax services rendered in all business, it would have been unnecessary to have included in the act the long enumeration. . . . Further, when the statute is read and comparatively unimportant businesses designated, it is inconceivable to conclude that the failure of the Legislature to include the general warehouse storage business by name was occasioned by oversight or inadvertence or under the belief that it was included by implication in one or more of the businesses named."

When Testimony Conflicts

WHEN conflicting testimony is given by parties in litigation, the jury may carefully weigh all of the testimony and render its decision accordingly.

For instance, in Bernard's Warehouse, Inc., v. Willis, 198 S.E. 636, it was disclosed that a warehouseman sued a man named Willis for $1,855 and alleged that he had loaned Willis $4,226 of which the latter had repaid $2,371. However, Willis offered testimony that the warehouseman had employed him to solicit warehouse business and that from time to time the warehouseman had advanced to him funds to be used in making loans to customers, and to purchase merchandise. Also, Willis alleged and introduced evidence tending to show that the difference between the amount advanced to him and the amount repaid was caused by losses on goods purchased by him as agent of the warehouseman at his insistence and direction. Willis stated that the amount of his salary was not agreed upon but that his services were reasonably worth $600.

After considering all the testimony the jury decided that the warehouseman had loaned Willis $500, and that services rendered by the latter were worth $200. In other words, the jury refused to believe the full testimony of either the warehouseman or Willis, but decided that in certain transactions Willis had acted as agent for the warehouseman and in other transactions Willis had used money advanced by the warehouseman for his, Willis, own personal business ventures. The higher court upheld the verdict rendered by the jury and said:

"The conflicting evidence in this cause was submitted to the jury. The controverted issues of fact have been determined by the jury as required by law."

Woman Reckless

VARIOUS courts have held that no person is negligent, and liable in damages for an injury, because of failure to guess intentions of another who acts recklessly.

For illustration, in Wilson v. Michigan Interstate Motor Freight, Inc., 281 N.W. 552, a woman backed her car out of a private drive into the pathway of a truck and trailer she saw coming, under the expectation that she would be noted by the truck driver and he would change his course to the left and pass. The truck driver turned to the right, his proper side of the highway, and a collision followed.

The woman brought suit to recover damages for personal injuries. The lower court held the woman entitled to recover damages, but the higher court reversed the decision, and said:

"She backed out in a normal manner and continued to observe this truck and continued backing until near the west curb . . . and she is not to be excused because of his (truck driver's) failure to sense her expectation."

Liability of Common Carrier, Warehouseman & Private Carrier

THERE is legal distinction between the liability of a common carrier, a warehouseman and a private carrier. A common carrier is practically an insurer of the safe arrival of goods which it accepts for transportation. In other words, a common carrier is liable for all loss, except such as may be caused by (1) the act of God; or (2) a public enemy of the United States; or (3) the fault of the shipper; or (4) the inherent nature of the goods. Although the damage is due to one of these four causes, the carrier still is liable for any damages which may result by its failure to exercise reasonable care to protect the shipment from such loss or damage.

An act of God is an irresistible physical force which is not perceptible by ordinary or extraordinary human foresight. Therefore, an act of God may be an extraordinary heavy downpour of rain, an unusual flood, a cyclone, an earthquake, or other similar natural disturbances.

Another important point of the law is that neither a common carrier, private carrier, or warehouseman is liable for loss or damage of shipped goods resulting from inherent danger of the goods.

Warehouseman Liability

While a common carrier generally is liable as an insurer of shipped goods, a warehouseman never is liable for loss or injury to stored goods, unless his negligence resulted in the damage. In other words, in order to avoid liability for lost, damaged or destroyed merchandise, a warehouseman is legally bound to exercise an ordinary degree of care to safeguard the stored goods against injury.

On the other hand, it is important to know that there is no fixed standard in the law by which a court is enabled to definitely decide in every case what conduct of a warehouseman is reasonably careful and prudent. The terms "ordinary care," "reasonable prudence," and such like terms, when applied to the care legally required of a warehouseman, cannot be arbitrarily defined. What may be deemed ordinary care in one case may under different surroundings and circumstances be gross negligence.

For illustration, in one case (117 So. 834), a higher court held that the owner of a small warehouse was not legally required to supply a night watchman because the income derived from the business would not justify an expenditure of this nature. On the other hand, another court decided that the owner of a large capacity warehouse was negligent in failing to provide a night watchman, and held the warehouseman liable for the value of equipment stolen during the night time.

Obviously, failure of a warehouseman to provide adequate fire protection results in his liability for loss of goods by fire. Also, some courts have held warehousemen liable for theft where it was shown that the warehouse was not equipped with a burglar alarm.

Private Carrier Liability

Although a common carrier is practically an insurer of the safe arrival of shipped merchandise, a private carrier's liability is almost identical with that of a warehouseman. Legally a common carrier is any carrier which holds itself out to the public as being ready to transport goods for all who demand the service. However, a private carrier is one who transports goods for only selected persons or firms. For instance, the owner of a motor truck whose business is transporting his own goods in his own truck is a private carrier, and if he hauls for another on special occasions he cannot be held liable for loss of or damage to the shipper's merchandise, unless the owner of the goods introduces convincing testimony proving that such damage or loss resulted from negligence or lack of ordinary care on the part of the truck owner or his employees.

In other words, a private carrier is liable in damages for injury to or loss of shipped merchandise only if it is proved that the carrier was negligent in safeguarding the shipped merchandise.

For illustration, in Cook v. Transfer Co., 13 P. (2d) 549, it was disclosed that a shipment was placed on a motor truck. When the shipment was delivered to the consignee it was discovered that the goods were damaged. It was contended by the owner of the motor truck that the damage to the merchandise was not occasioned by his negligence. However, in view of the fact that the owner of the goods proved that there was no cover on the truck, the higher court held the truck company liable.

United States Laws Control

CONSIDERABLE discussion has arisen on how to determine which state law controls a contract when persons located in two states make the contract. Generally speaking, a contract between parties in different states is made where last the act necessary to give it validity is performed, but the laws of this state do not control the seller if the transaction is interstate.

For illustration, in Kansas City Wholesale Co. v. Weber Packing Corp., 73 Pac. (2d) 1272, Ogden, Utah, it was shown that a Missouri buyer signed a written contract of sale in Missouri and sent it to a manufacturer in Utah, where it was accepted and executed by the Utah manufacturer and became a binding obligation. The contract was performed by shipment of goods to the purchaser f. o. b. the manufacturer's factory, under an agreement that the goods were at the buyer's risk after delivery to the carrier in Utah. The higher court held this contract to be a Utah contract. However, the court held that since the manufacturer in Missouri had no place of business or representatives in Utah, and sold no merchandise in Utah, acceptance of the above mentioned contract in this manner did not constitute "doing business" in Utah but was a transaction in interstate commerce unaffected by Utah laws regulating foreign corporations.

Therefore, although the seller had not complied with laws of Utah, respecting foreign corporations doing business in the state, the higher court held that the seller could sue the purchaser or perform other acts prohibited by Utah state laws.

Motor TRANSPORTATION

Storage Warehouse Cannot Act, Unchartered, as Common Carrier

JUDGE P. J. KELLER, of the Pennsylvania Superior Court, has rendered a decision in the nationally important test case of the Haugh & Keenan Storage & Transfer Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., against the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, on appeal, whereby the Court dismisses the appeal and affirms the order of the Commission at the costs of the appellant.

Because of the scope of the Superior Court's decision, it is quoted below. This decision, in effect, upholds the principle of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission that a storage warehouse company, chartered originally as such, has no legal right to engage in house-to-house moving without obtaining from the Commission a special charter for the latter purpose. As Judge Keller states in his decision:

"No private corporation can carry on the business of a public utility, except one that has been incorporated as a public utility. This will not interfere with the right of the appellant to transport goods and personal property to its warehouse to be stored, or from its warehouse to its customer's home, or place of business. These are proper incidental powers; but it will prevent its transporting, for the general public, goods and personal property which neither go into, nor come from its warehouse."

By quoting the appellant's original corporate purpose as expressed in its charter to act as a storage warehouse concern, the Court made it clear that such purpose was not to act as a common carrier. The case as a whole affects only corporations, not partnerships and individual concerns. When the warehousing company applied to the Commission for renewal of its charter, the Commission had refused the application.

Argument on the appeal was heard on Sept. 29, last, in Philadelphia, before Judges Keller, Stadfield, Cunningham, Rhodes, Parker and Meyers. The Public Utility Commission was represented by John C. Kelley, assistant counsel, and Attorney Alexander Cooper, Pittsburgh, appeared for the appellant, arguing that house-to-house moving is so closely connected with warehousing as to constitute a part of it and that such moving operations are not such an activity as can be engaged in exclusively, without connection with warehousing.

In his decision, Judge Keller said:

"The appellant is a Pennsylvania corporation organized under the General Corporation Act of April 29, 1874, for the purpose of carrying on a general warehouse business. Its charter reads:

" 'The purpose for which said corporation is formed is to carry on a general warehouse business to receive for safekeeping or storage, goods, wares merchandise and property of all kinds; to take charge of and perform the duty of paying freights, charges, duties on, bonding, receiving, lending, hauling and transferring all such goods, wares and merchandise; to insure, or cause to be insured the owner or owners thereof, against all loss by fire or water, whether in transit or in storage; to advance money upon any property in its custody, or upon bills of lading, receipts, or certificates representing the goods in storage, elsewhere, or in transit; to issue receipts or certificates for goods, wares, or merchandise, or property to the owner or owners thereof when such goods, wares, or merchandise, or property are on the premises, or under the control of said corporation at the time of issuing such receipts or certificates; to hold and improve such real estate as may be necessary in order to conveniently or properly conduct the business of such corporation, and such real estate as may be conveyed to the said corporation as security for, or in satisfaction of a debt or debts due to it; and to do such other acts or things as are necessary or incident to the successful prosecution of its business, as well as the acts enumerated as those incidental to the successful prosecution of its business, to be done and performed consistently; and the rights, privileges and franchises enjoyed to be limited by the provisions and limitations in the laws of this Commonwealth set forth.'

"Its charter gives it no power to engage in, or carry on business as a common carrier. Notwithstanding this, it has for years been acting as a common carrier in the transportation of goods in the operation known as household movings.

"In 1923, it applied to the Commission for a certificate of public convenience evidencing its approval of the company's engaging in the business of house-to-house moving, which was granted; but this was evidently done without a realization that such operation amounted to carrying on business as a common carrier.

"This certificate expired at the end of 2 yrs., and when the company filed an application for its renewal, the Commission refused to renew it on the ground that the applicant's charter gave it no power to engage in the business of a common carrier. The company appealed. If the corporation applicant clearly had no power to conduct the business of a common carrier, the Commission was justified in refusing it a certificate of public convenience, ending approval of its doing so.

"The appellant bases its appeal to this Court on the proposition that the operation of transporting household goods, known as household moving, or house-to-house moving, is incidental to its main business of general warehousing and intended to promote the comfort and convenience of the patrons of its warehousing business, although not restricted to them. It relies on the principles enumerated in Malone versus the Lancaster Gas Light & Fuel Co., 182 Pa., 309, 37 A, 932, and the Commission ex. rel., versus the Philadelphia Electric Co., 300 Pa., 577, 151 A, 314, which hold that a public utility corporation organized for the purpose of manufacturing and supplying light, heat and power by electricity may sell, as an incident to its business, gas or electrical appliances, respectively, by means of which the consumption of gas or electricity is encouraged and increased. But they furnish no ground for the converse position that a corporation organized for the purpose of selling gas or electrical appliances might, as an incident of its business to encourage and increase its sales, engage in the public utility business of manufacturing and supplying gas for lighting, or heating, or of supplying light, heat and power by electricity.

"We referred to the case of the American Supply Co. versus the Grant Building, 102 Pa., Superior Court, 373, 382, 157 A, 52, inter alia, to the illustration in the Malone case, supra, p. 322, that 'railway companies may erect refreshment rooms and book stalls and adopt other similar means for both, providing for the comfort of their customers and adding to their own receipts,' but there was no hint or suggestion that a corporation organized to conduct a restaurant, or a book store could, by way of providing for the comfort of its customers and adding to its own receipts, engage in the railway transportation business as a common carrier.

"The Commission, in reviewing the scope of the appellant's activities, found that in transporting for the general public goods and personal property which did not go into, or come out of its warehouse, it was carrying on the business of a common carrier. The appellant does not dispute this finding, but claims the right to carry on such business as a common carrier as being merely incidental to its corporate business of general warehousing.

"We are of the opinion that transportation of goods as a common carrier cannot legally be made incidental to the carrying on of a general warehouse business so as to permit a corporation organized for the latter purpose, to carry on business as if under the former. No private corporation can carry on the business of a public utility, except one that has been incorporated as a public utility.

"This will not interfere with the right of the appellant to transport goods and personal property to its warehouse to be stored, or from its warehouse to its customer's home or place of business. These are proper incidental powers; but it will prevent its transporting, for the general public, goods and personal property which neither go into nor come from its warehouse.

"The General Corporation Act of 1874, supra, restricted the corporation to the one purpose stated in its charter. While the Business Corporation Law of 1933 (May 5), P. L. 364, as amended July 8, 1937, P. L. 2828, has liberalized this, it specifically exempts from its scope 'any corporation which by the laws of the Commonwealth is subject to the supervision of . . . the Pennsylvania Utility Commission.' [Sec. 4 (3)].

"The appeal is dismissed and the order of the Commission is affirmed at the costs of the appellant."

(Note: Under Federal regulation, many warehousing concerns voluntarily have created a separate corporation to perform the transportation function, in order to keep private warehouse operations from coming under the scrutiny of the Interstate Commerce Commission.)

N. Y. Pact Ends 5-Day Strike

Long distance carriers and platform men in New York City who participated in a 5-day strike for higher wages, have gone back to work due to a settlement for higher wages, time-and-a-half for overtime and pay for legal holidays.

The strike was called Dec. 8 by the Motor and Bus Terminal, Platform and Office Workers Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, to obtain a wage increase from $4.70 to $6.50 a day. After the walkout, about 1,000 members of Local 807 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters refused to drive trucks belonging to members of the Highway Transport Assn., having a membership of 162.

The contract agreed upon is for 21 mos., retroactive to Dec. 8. For the first 10½ mos., the wages are to be $5.50 a day, and for the second half of the agreement the pay is to be $6.50 a day. Individual agreements calling for higher wages are to be supreseded by the new document.

A.T.A. Convention at Chicago in 1939

The 1939 annual convention, the sixth of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., will be held at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, about the middle of next October.

Expanding Truck Service a Boon to Railroads

EXPANDING motor truck service has not only provided an improved means for transportation of freight but also has been a boon to railroads by making possible their abandonment of unprofitable lines, the National Highway Users Conference claims in a survey of 10 widely scattered areas.

Eleven studies were made, covering the states of Arkansas, California, Colorado, Nebraska, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont and West Virginia. In all areas, except the one in Utah, rail service had been discontinued.

In search for representative zones, the Conference picked sections with representative types of local industry affected by rail abandonments; chose agricultural, mining, lumbering and manufacturing as well as localities of general traffic.

The uniform conclusions arrived at from summarizing and averaging the separate studies are as follows:

1. Because of family cars, trucks and buses, rubber tires and good roads, towns without railroads are no longer at a transportation disadvantage.

2. If a community has a hard-surfaced highway, it is not injured by the abandonment of a short-line or branch line railroad.

3. After a railroad is abandoned, highway transportation employs more people; pays more total taxes, offers more flexible, convenient and frequent service; provides faster transportation; continues and accelerates social developments.

4. The railroad is seldom missed except for reasons of sentimental or civic pride.

5. Due to changed methods of production, marketing and shipping, the railroad would not be used much if it were restored to such communities as those studied in this survey, which are representative of the thousands of towns that have lost their railways.

6. The disclosure that communities continue to thrive when served only by highway transportation is a contribution to the solution of the railroad problem of the day in that public opinion and regulatory commissions should more readily allow rail operations to cease on unprofitable mileages.

The Conference concedes that no single method of transportation will ever completely supply the necessities of the nation, but the concept is advanced that highway trucking fits into the transportation plan of the nation.

"When economic and social factors are changing progressively, and, in some cases, rapidly, it is well to analyze conditions sanely, and not become frightened for fear some present methods and facilities will wholly disappear to be supplanted by other present or new forms of transport," it is suggested.

"When abandonment of a rail line is proposed, residents of the affected communities usually rise up in arms against it, forming committees, circulating petitions and protesting in other ways. Thinking in terms of the disadvantage suffered by railless towns in the 'horse and buggy' days, they fear that calamity will befall them if the railroad is lost. Apparently they do not realize the growth and dependability of highway transportation. They would retain two transport mediums even though there is not enough traffic to support more than one. As a matter of civic pride, they would retain the unprofitable rail line which they themselves have come to patronize less and less.

"Experience following railroad abandonment discloses that the fears of protesting citizens were largely groundless. Departure of the railroad leaves no adverse economic or social effect on the communities once served. Time after time towns are observed to have increased in population and enjoyed better business, larger bank deposits and superior transportation service. These improvements in certain localities are all the more impressive, coming, as they did, in the period of general economic depression.

"Storekeepers in towns, villages and rural areas now are freed from the necessity of keeping their funds tied up in large stocks of goods. Depressed business conditions in general have demanded smaller inventories. Expeditious, flexible and frequent truck service lends itself to this kind of merchandising. Small shipments rather than carload lots are the mode. Smaller stocks permit and encourage the carrying of a greater variety of items as a potent invitation to trade. Another offset to the loss of rail service is the fact that merchants now often economize by bargaining for their stock in the city and hauling it back in their own car or truck.

"Farmers also find that loss of rail service is not a handicap to them. Being able on the highway to move their produce, live stock and even grain in less than carload lots, they can gear their shipments to the rapid fluctuations of the market. Let a good price be announced over the radio and they are able immediately to get their products to market. Use of the highways avoids the necessity of cars ordered in advance, mass shipments, delays in loading and much of the uncertainty of prices at the marketing centers.

"Even where there is rail service there are times when, but for the highways, farmers would be unable to market their perishable crops at any price. This fact was brought sharply to public attention in the summer of 1938 by the authorities of Colorado and Arkansas letting down border barriers against non-resident truck operators so that they might enter those states to buy from the growers fruits and vegetables for which there was no local market.

"No longer is a railroad considered essential in mining. For example, in Illinois alone 1,056 coal mines are not served by railroads. In recent years many manufacturing and other industries have been established on improved highways with no thought of a need of rail transportation.

"Approximately 40 per cent of the nation's 122,473 communities have no railroads and are solely dependent upon the highways for their transportation needs."

Railway Express Starts "Reefer" Container Service

The Railway Express Agency on Jan. 15 will inaugurate a new refrigerated container service for the shipment of perishables, such as frozen foods, fish, pharmaceuticals, fresh fruits, and vegetables.

The new container, manufactured by the General Electric Co. at its Erie Works, holds about 300 lbs. of merchandise and is light enough to be handled easily at local stations. The refrigerant used is either dry ice in the case of frozen foods and fish or water ice with fresh vegetables and fruits where below freezing temperatures are not required.

In addition to the express charges on the commodity or commodities shipped and the service charge for the use of the container while in transit, a small fee of 50 cents per day will be assessed if consignee desires to use the container for storage purposes. The shipper provides the refrigerant.

The new service is expected to expand the distribution of frozen foods, at present confined to the larger cities. The difficulties and costs involved in transporting small quantities over longer distances under proper refrigeration have limited redistribution from central points. The containers are designed for easy handling. When loaded and ready for forwarding, the container weighs 663 lbs. and equipped with six casters, is easily moved on platforms, trucks and express cars.

Can Limit Size and Weight in Illinois

In a far-reaching decision made public Nov. 25, Judge J. LeRoy Adair of the United States Court upheld the right of the state of Illinois to limit the weight and size of trucks using its highways. At the same time the ruling establishes a basis for future legislation requiring heavy trucks to pay their full proportionate share of highway construction and maintenance costs.

The ruling was handed down in a case brought more than a year ago by Brashear Freight Lines, Inc., against the secretary of state and other state officials, demanding an injunction to restrain the state from collecting truck license fees on the grounds that the fee statute was unconstitutional and that the heavy trucks were discriminated against in favor of passenger cars and other lighter vehicles.

Judge Adair not only upheld the state on every point of law in his decision, but also accepted in its entirety the state's cost study setting up the valuation, actual cost of construction and maintenance and the proportionate share which each class of motor vehicle must pay to keep the highway system in good repair. State officials declare that this is the first time that any court has set up a basis of reckoning construction and maintenance costs of highways.

According to this cost schedule, prepared under the direction of Vernon Glover, state highway research engineer, heavy trucks carrying 24,000 pounds and over would pay approximately four times the amount of their present fee.

The court held that trucks of this class are now paying $996.72 less per year per vehicle than their share necessary to keep the state roads in passable condition. The table of comparative costs contrasting what each class of vehicle now pays with what each class should pay in order to keep the roads in repair follows. The trucks are classified according to their weight.

Trucks—	Cost to state	Present fee
A—To 3,000 lbs.	$53.61	$31.11
B—To 8,000	115.64	46.68
C—To 9,000	212.79	76.64
D—To 12,000	297.52	103.19
E—To 14,000	370.36	127.76
F—To 16,000	487.13	167.47
G—To 20,000	639.23	213.59
H—To 24,000	839.95	268.54
X—Exceeding 24,000	1,361.28	364.56
Public-owned	240.83	59.00
Passenger cars	48.83	24.92
Dealers' cars	97.67	51.21

These calculations, the decision explained, are based upon a total valuation of state highways, including city streets, in excess of $2,739,917,857, with an annual reconstruction and maintenance cost "properly chargeable to motor vehicles" totaling $116,220,020.

"The methods used by the state in the preparation of this cost study," the decision read, "are fair and just and produce conclusions which are reasonably accurate and furnish support for the legislative judgment of the General Assembly in fixing the amount of fees.

"The highway system owned by the state and its subdivisions is a public utility supplying facilities which constitute an actual monopoly which is subject to governmental regulation and control. The annual cost of operating such utility should be determined in the same manner as for a privately owned public utility. Not less than 50 per cent of the annual cost of city streets, not less than 60 per cent of the road system and not less than 90 per cent of the primary road system (consisting of the 10,000 miles of hard pavement roads) should be charged to motor vehicles as a class.

"The motor vehicle fees and taxes collected from motor vehicle owners are insufficient to compensate the state for that portion of the cost of providing highway facilities which is properly chargeable to motor vehicles. And the heavier the vehicle, the greater is its potentiality for wear and tear on public highways. A statute fixing license fees or charges for highway use in amounts progressively larger for heavier vehicles and not directly proportional to weight, is not arbitrary or unreasonable and does not result in an undue burden on interstate commerce."

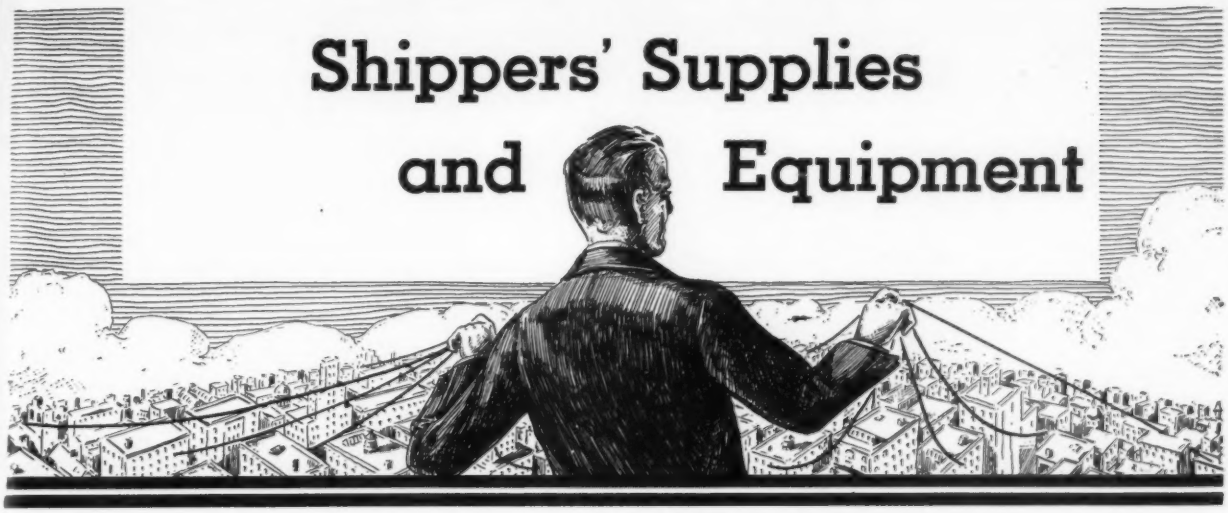

Judge Adair's decision also gives the state the right to tax "foreign" trucks from other states for use of the Illinois highways.

Urges Unified Rule for All Transport

The special railroad committee appointed by the President to draft a plan for rehabilitating the debt-burdened railroads, has recommended that control of all forms of transportation be centralized under the I.C.C. and that a new agency be formed to end "favoritism" for some competitors of the rails. Under the proposals of this committee the I.C.C. would be given revised rate-making powers for all transportation agencies; a new and independent transportation board would be charged with other regulation.

U. S. to Enforce Bonded Warehouse Rule

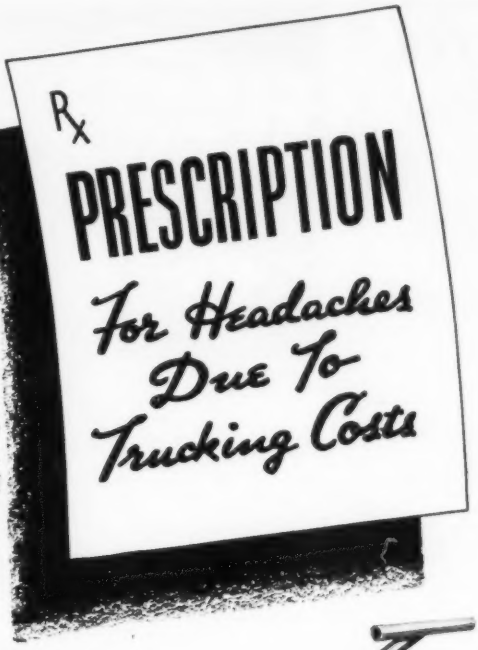

Importers have been warned not to expect a Presidential proclamation granting an extra year's grace on the 3-yr. period in which imported merchandise can be kept in bonded warehouses.

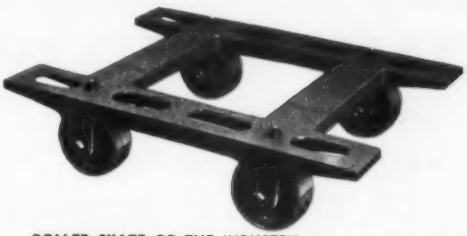

In a bulletin to its members the National Council of American Importers, Inc., advised them that "it was safe to assume" that the concession which has been made in previous years will not be repeated this year. Importers had asked the government to grant a year's additional storage time on goods imported in the period from 1934-1936.

AGILE, NOT FRAGILE

Service Warehouse Truck is universally popular in warehouses. Has parallel spaced side rails and inside wheels. Large and rugged but surprisingly easy to handle. Four sizes. Optional wheels. Choice of plain bearings or Hyatt roller bearing axles.

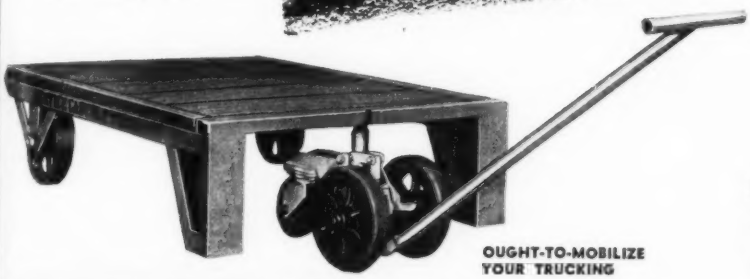

ROLLER SKATE OF THE INDUSTRY. Service Case Dolly's entire frame is of 3-inch channel, electric-welded into a single, rugged unit. Wheels, which measure 4 inches in diameter with 1½-inch face, are of drop-forged steel. They are mounted rigid, and turn over roller-bearings. Capacity 2000 pounds . . . impact, or shock, load capacity of three times that.

SHAPELY DOLL

Husky Service Furniture Dolly. Strongly built. Shaped so it is easy to pick up and carry. Light . . . only weighs 28 pounds. Northern hard maple frame. Mounted on four Service Casters of quadruple ball-bearing design. Very easy to push and turn. Solid rubber 4-inch wheels. Size 18" wide, 28" long and 7½" high. Weight, 28 pounds. Capacity, 800 pounds.

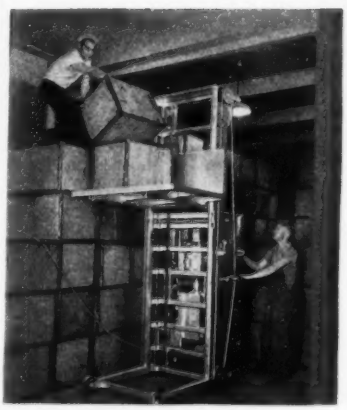

OUGHT-TO-MOBILIZE YOUR TRUCKING

Service Skid-Jacks offer a revolutionary combination, a complete materials handling system in itself: 2-wheel semi-live skids—a 2-wheel jack to swing into place, then, with one swift stroke, lift and pull away like a truck. All the advantages of lift truck operation without most of its handicaps.

UP TO 3000 LBS.

The Service Hustler's frame is 16x24 inches, all steel arc-welded assembled. Ends are two strips of ¼ by 4-inch steel plate superimposed by pieces of 1 by 4-inch hard maple. Four different caster combinations provide capacity range of 1,000; 2,000; 2,400; and 3,000 pounds. Weight, 48 pounds.

PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

Service Lifters provide vertical transportation for storing products ceiling-ward. Cash in on overhead space ordinarily non-productive. Wherever men lift loads, Service Lifters will do it easier, quicker, safer and cheaper. We build electric, hydraulic, and hand-operated Lifters . . . in any capacity . . . with any speed . . . with maximum safety.

● You'd be tickled if an inventory showed this would probably be a year with no new truck equipment to buy as replacements. But unless you followed the lead of buyers who long ago got wise and standardized on Service Caster & Truck units, you probably expect replacements every year . . . Do you think they are a necessary evil?

Write for the Service Catalog and learn our ideals of construction. They represent an ideal of the Service for which our company is named. We know how to build for industrial use—how to build to take punishment.

We don't make everything—but we could! If our stock line covers your needs fine—but, if not, write us what we can "custom build" for you.

Cal. Hhg. Companies Consider Rail Commission Control

With California's legislation session due to open this month, the California Van and Storage Assn. is engaged in carefully weighing the advantages and disadvantages of having household goods brought under the State Railroad Commission. The commercial warehouses and all for-hire trucking have been under the Commission for some years. Because benefit appears to have resulted to these divisions of the industry as a result of the stabilization that Commission control has brought about, the household goods group is considering legislative moves which would bring the household goods warehouses under the Commission. H. A. Kern, secretary of the association, says that a new act would have to be developed and passed. Conclusions of the association officers' study will be announced early, it is expected.

AGMA Endorses Plan for Widening Market

The Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., at its 30th annual convention at the Waldorf-Astoria, Nov. 28-30, endorsed a promotion plan for widening the market for the advertised brands of its 260 member companies. These firms have an annual sales volume of close to $4,000,000,000 and spend close to $100,000,000 annually for advertising.

This sales promotion will be in the form of consumer education through a "Parade of Progress" plan that will enlist the aid of the newspapers, magazines, radio, etc., in pointing out the advances made by each manufacturer in the improvement of his products and the increase in distribution efficiency.

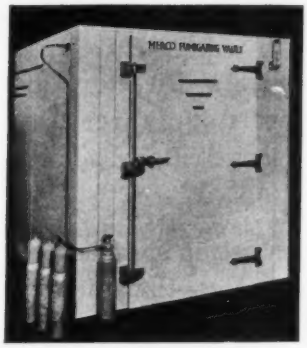

Through such advertising aids, these food manufacturers are expecting to reach out into markets heretofore untouched and to also increase business at stores already stocked with their products. The plan is backed by the National American Wholesale Grocers Assn., the Super-Market Institute, and the Chain Store group.

The entire plan is designed to create confidence in the quality of groceries sold the year-round, but special emphasis will be placed on the point-of-sale celebration which is scheduled to begin April 6, 1939. The drive for new business, however, will start Feb. 1, when all of the various advertising facilities will be used. This will be continuous throughout the year.

Formation of an Institute of Nutrition by the food industry was advocated at the convention by Charles W. Dunn, legal counsel of AGMA, who suggested that the institute be operated under the auspices of a leading university and that it be housed in its own building, appropriately organized and directed on the highest scientific basis. Mr. Dunn prefaced his suggestion by stating that "we must conclude that the industry's potential opportunity for greatest fundamental service lies in the general field embraced by the basic science of food research, the fundamental science of nutrition and the dominating science of health in its relation to food.

"We are entering an era of intense public interest in science and public health to food; the American housewife is ever becoming more nutrition and health conscious and informed, and she will increasingly and persistently seek out the manufacturer who best serves her nutrition and health needs." Mr. Dunn's plan was endorsed by the convention and a committee formed to deal with his proposal. Clarence Francis, president of General Foods Corp., was named chairman.

SURE,
you want 'em tough . . . so we made "HALLOWELL" STEEL FLOOR TRUCKS just that way

It's no panty-waist job that trucks get in warehouse service. So they've got to be rugged or you'll be spending too much hard earned money to keep them in repair or to replace them. "Hallowell" Steel Trucks are tough, plenty tough. Why those one-piece, smooth, heavy steel plate tops will take the many hard bangs and shocks that are always occurring, without a sign of splintering or splitting. Then take a look at the joints. We know that would be a weak spot if we simply riveted them together, so we weld them. That makes the trucks practically a one-piece affair.

If you're looking for a floor truck that'll take everything you can give it and then almost sit up and beg for more . . . well, there's no two ways about it, you just want a "Hallowell".

Fig. 754

You can get "Hallowell" Trucks in so many different styles, you're sure to find the one you want . . . listed in our catalog; send us the coupon below and we'll send you the catalog. You can't lose.

ABBREVIATIONS

The abbreviations used in the listings for this Shippers' Directory are explained in this alphabetical tabulation which is divided into three classifications, namely: General Abbreviations, Abbreviations of Railroads and Waterways and Abbreviations of Associations.

For your further guidance, the star * appearing in a listing signifies that the information has been attested before a Notary Public—that the facts and figures were sworn to by the warehouse executive supplying the same. All listings set in bold face type identify warehouses whose advertising you will find in every issue of D & W.

Those set in light face type identify those warehouses whose ads appear in this Directory only.

Non-advertisers are listed in a single line of light face type.

Any questions concerning this service or suggestions for its improvement will be welcomed by the publishers.

10-Point Program for Rails Offered by U. S. Chamber

AN initial program designed to enable the railroads to continue operation under private ownership was approved last month by a special transportation conference sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The full program, tentatively agreed upon at a previous meeting of the Washington conference in October, provides for revision of railroad rate making practices, relief from legislative burdens and restrictions, consolidations, coordinations and abandonments, financial reorganization plans and federal financial assistance to railroads.

Recommendations, one-half of the original 20-point program, agreed to by the conferees were:

1. Repeal of the land grant statutes.
2. Relief from the undistributed profits tax.
3. Action by Congress to require the government to dispose of the Federal Barge Lines to private parties.
4. Avoidance of restrictive measures such as train length limit, excess crew laws, six-hour day, etc.
5. Amendment of the Railway Labor Act.
(a) To include public members in odd numbers on adjustment boards so as to insure disposition of each case in the first instance.
(b) To authorize federal court review of adjustment board decisions at the instance of the railroads as now allowed employees.
(c) To place a limit upon the time within which claims can be presented.
6. Legislation to facilitate reorganizations by permitting a carrier and its stockholders and creditors to secure approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of an agreed plan of reorganization which, when so approved, may be made promptly effective against small minority interests by a bankruptcy court, without appointment by a trustee.
7. Relief from the expense, in excess of net direct benefits to them, for reconstruction of railroad bridges in connection with navigation or flood control projects.
8. Facilitation of voluntary consolidation through legislation repealing the present requirement (as in the Transportation Act of 1920) as to a comprehensive plan, balanced systems, maintenance of all possible competition and preservation of existing trade channels. Permission should also be granted to the railroads, subject to such voluntary consolidation and coordinations as will result in economies and assure adequate service and preserve reasonable competition.
9. Adoption of legislation requiring more expeditious disposition of abandonment applications.
10. Give power of eminent domain over small minority stock interests and lines desired in consolidations approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Ducks Don't Have a Chance

George E. Martin, head of the Clark & Reid Co., Cambridge, Mass., and Curtis & Croston, Inc., Boston; Edward G. Mooney, president of the Hartford Despatch and Warehouse Co., Inc., Hartford, Conn., and James E. Mulligan, head of the Knickerbocker Storage Warehouse Co., Newark, N. J., spent the Thanksgiving weekend at Mr. Martin's summer home in West Harwich, Mass., and did some fine work shooting ducks. The wives and families were along and besides learning that actually a lot of ducks were shot, none seemed willing to decide which one of the warehousemen was the best shot.

Wisconsin Warehousemen Use Xmas Gifts Made in State

A. L. Fischer, president of the Wisconsin Warehousemen's Assn., called the attention of its members that the association was on record with Governor-Elect J. P. Heil that it would cooperate with him in cementing and improving relationship between Wisconsin farmers, manufacturers, merchants and the public.

Mr. Heil's recommendation that business and industrial concerns distributing merchandise items as good will offerings at Christmas time make use of Wisconsin products, was the point of Mr. Fisher's letter to the warehouse group members. "If you are distributing some Xmas presents now, or if you contemplate future distribution of favors or souvenirs, why not use a Wisconsin product," stated Mr. Fisher.

Paper Shipping Tag Revision Up for Industry Acceptance

The Standing Committee in charge of Simplified Practice Recommendation R93, Paper Shipping Tags, has approved a first revision of the recommendation, and the Division of Simplified Practice of the National Bureau of Standards has mailed copies to all interests for the purpose of determining whether it is generally acceptable for promulgation.

This revision, which was proposed by the Tag Manufacturers Institute, covers sizes of shipping tags and the paper stocks used in their manufacture. Four tables are included, showing fiber content, weight, thickness, and Elmendorf tear for manila tag stocks, kraft and dyed stocks, coated stocks, and white lined stocks.

The original recommendation was developed by a general conference of the industry in April, 1929, and became effective in September of that year.

Following approval of producers, distributors, and users of paper shipping tags, the revised recommendation will be promulgated and printed by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Mimeographed copies of the proposed revision may be obtained from the Division of Simplified Practice, National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

Warehouse and Distribution Center of the Pacific Southwest

Manufacturers requiring storage and distributing facilities in this area find here the ultimate in modern, economical, efficient warehouse service.

Scores of concerns are finding that Westland facilities afford the maximum in flexibility of overhead costs.

Only Westland in the West offers neutral switching service of the Los Angeles Junction Railway, which serves all railroads.

Cal. Truck Convention Feb. 23-25

Bills in the California State Legislature that may affect trucking, national legislation, the wages and hours law and other problems of the industry will be discussed in detail at the annual convention of the Truck Owners' Association of California to be held Feb. 23-24-25 at the Hotel Leamington, Oakland. Because of the importance of the matters to be brought up in the business sessions, an even larger attendance is expected at this meeting than at last year's, when 700 truckmen gathered together. Roy B. Thompson, executive secretary of T.O.A., says that John L. Rogers, commissioner with the I.C.C., has been invited to speak on the Motor Carriers Act of 1935. State officials and leaders in the industry are also being invited but the program is not yet sufficiently far advanced to announce names.

Dully & Son Expands in Hartford

T. E. Dully, head of Dully and Son, Hartford, Conn., has purchased and is completely remodeling a new fireproof building at 557 Prospect Ave., Hartford. The building, formerly one of the telephone company units, is strictly fireproof, made of brick, steel and concrete.

There are three floors and basement. The remodeling plans call for an office on the first floor, with separate compartments for upholstered furniture and individual fireproofed rooms on the first and upper floors. The basement will be used for special storage for trunks and valuables with a complete vault.

The lot on which the new plant is located measures 65 by 400 ft., furnishing ample room for expansion and providing ample parking space for customers' cars. Completion of the building is expected by Jan. 1, 1939.

Potential Competition

THE interstate commerce commission in granting fourth section relief on woodpulp shipments from Fernandina, Fla., to Philadelphia and Pencoyd, Pa., has ruled that efforts made by water carriers to secure this traffic provide a sufficient basis for authorizing fourth section rates which will insure rail handling.

The Kraft Corp. of America, a subsidiary of the Container Corp. of America, has a woodpulp plant at Fernandina. The plant possesses a dock on a navigable stream capable of accommodating vessels with a draft up to 28 ft. Before the plant entered production, the Pan-Atlantic Steamship Corp. offered to haul woodpulp from Fernandina dock to Philadelphia dock at a rate of 20 cents, subject to a minimum movement of 1,500 tons per month, all in one lot, the shipper to take care of any wharfage or handling charges at Fernandina, except ships' stevedoring. The shipper was also to pay the cost of marine insurance, of 2 cents per ton, 50 cents per ton for loading the woodpulp from the dock to cars at Philadelphia and a switching charge of $28.00 per car, equivalent to 70 cents per ton on a car of 80,000 lbs., for rail movement from Philadelphia dock to the plant at Pencoyd.

The aggregate charge for this water-rail movement would have been $5.22 per net ton. The Pan-Atlantic offer was contingent on a contract for 1 yr. The rail carriers proposed to establish a rate of 29½ cents, minimum 80,000 lbs from Fernandina to Philadelphia and Pencoyd.

The commission granted temporary fourth section relief and in findings just issued has now made this authority permanent. The commission held that although there had been no movement of woodpulp by water from Fernandina to Philadelphia and Pencoyd up to the time of the hearing, "it is reasonably certain that there will be such movements unless applicants maintain the rate proposed." The commission added that unless the rail carriers are granted authority to maintain such rate "and the traffic goes to the water carriers, under long-term contracts, the rail carriers will have little opportunity to recover any of it." It held that the existence of water transportation facilities and bona fide offers by water carriers is sufficient basis to allow fourth section relief. It stated, however, that the water rate of $5.22 quoted by Pan-Atlantic may not be indefinitely available and that therefore fourth section permission to establish the 29½ cent rail rate should not continue for more than 2 yrs.

ICC Dismisses Philadelphia Port Plea

Philadelphia's complaint that discriminatory and prejudicial freight rates have cost the Port of Philadelphia millions of tons of shipping annually, by unanimous decision was dismissed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on Dec. 2, bringing to a close a long controversy. Three members of the commission did not participate in the proceedings.

The city charged that it had suffered great injury and damage under existing freight rates and maintained that much of the tonnage which formerly moved through the port now went through other seaboard cities. The commission found that there was no evidence that the existing rate structure was "unreasonable, unduly prejudicial, or otherwise in violation of the Interstate Commerce Act." Further, the commission held, "No doubt as to the correctness of that decision is raised by the present record."

In the brief filed by Philadelphia with the commission a year ago, Mayor Wilson named the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Reading Company as the principal defendants. The brief said that Philadelphia had lost all but one of its direct sailings to European countries since 1911 and had been forced to accept the status of a port of convenience. It further averred: "The crux of the present case with respect to discrimination, lies in the fact that no shipper outside Philadelphia's local freight rate territory can ship as advantageously through the Port of Philadelphia as through some other port."

Numerous hearings were held by the commission. At one of them, former Congressman George W. Edmonds testified that Philadelphia's import and export traffic was composed almost entirely of products of local origin and consumption.

Samuel H. Williams, manager of the transportation bureau of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, appeared in Washington, recently, before the Interstate Commerce Commission on behalf of Philadelphia's interests in the Virginia Ports Rail-Water Differential case. The State Corporation Commission of Virginia and the State Port Authority of Virginia had filed complaint with the I.C.C. contending that Philadelphia and other North Atlantic ports are unduly preferred and Virginia ports at a disadvantage with respect to freight rates of rail-water and water-rail routes to and from Central Freight Association territory points.

Chum Salmon Enters Frosted Food Fillet Trade

The humble Chum salmon has been called upon to play a part in the frosted food fillet trade. Just recently the bright silver Chum salmon, instead of entering the freezer as whole fish, has been transformed into the latest creation of the fresh section of the Canadian Fishing Co., Ltd., Vancouver, B. C., which, with American connections operates some twenty plants between Puget Sound and Alaska.

Only selected silver Chum salmon go into this new product marketed as Salmon Chillets. These fillets are packed in 5-lb. cardboard cartons, four of which are placed in fibreboard containers. These packages are passed as packed into the sharp freezer pans and are chilled until ready for shipment.

The Chum or Keta salmon has heretofore been canned for the cheaper export trade or dry-salted for the Oriental trade.

There are many species of Pacific salmon, but their food values are equal, although the color and other factors may be decidedly different. The Sockeye salmon in southern Pacific waters is equal to the Red salmon further north in Alaskan waters but its chief market value lies in its canning. The Coho salmon is also a red species, which is also canned and mild-cured to serve the smoked salmon trade. The Pink salmon is of a softer texture and enters the canned market.

If salmon fillets are new it is because years of experimentation brought problems more common than the frosted filleting of cod and other species. Then again, the fishermen demand a higher price for many species.

For the convenience of shippers, this section is arranged geographically

AMERICAN WAREHOUSEMEN'S ASSOCIATION OFFICIAL SEAL

Campaign for Little Wagner Act in Oklahoma

A campaign to establish a state labor relations board with jurisdiction over Oklahoma employers not engaged in interstate commerce was begun recently, as the Committee for Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor in Oklahoma moved to put their full force behind proposed legislation that would create a "little Wagner Act" for Oklahoma.

First steps included a concerted move for peace between the rival C.I.O. and the A.F.ofL., here. Adopting a resolution calling on William Green and John L. Lewis to "patch up their differences and re-unite the national labor organizations, the Oklahoma City Trades and Labor Council (A.F.ofL. unions) announced that unless the national leaders' feud is called off by Feb. 1, 1939, the council will lead an independent movement for harmony by calling a joint C.I.O.-A.F.ofL. state convention March 1 at Oklahoma City.

Meanwhile A.F.ofL. leaders were assured by Ed. Link, spokesman for the Oil Field Workers Union—most dominant C.I.O. body in the state—that his powerful organization would "back to the limit" the proposal to set up a labor relations board to enforce collective bargaining in those companies to which the U. S. Labor Relations Act does not apply.

Modeled after the national act and after state legislation adopted by New York, Massachusetts and Wisconsin, the proposed State Labor Relations act, as tentatively drafted, would "guarantee the right of collective bargaining;" would not "apply to agriculture, domestic and Government employes," or to "employes of charitable, educational or religious associations or corporations."

Major sections of the draft (there are 16 in all) would: "compel" employers to bargain with representatives chosen by a majority of their employes; guarantee employes the right of self-organization and collective bargaining free from interference; set up a quasi-judicial state labor relations board; define practices; and empower the board to prevent unfair labor practices by use of court cease-and-desist orders.

As drawn, the act does not interfere with the right to strike. Unfair labor practices are defined in the draft as "spying on employes," "distribution of blacklists," "interference with unions," "discrimination," "refusal to bargain," and "refusal to discuss grievances."

The proposed board, which would have authority to investigate unfair practice charges and to hold public hearings and enforce provisions of the act, would consist of three members, to be appointed by the state labor commissioner with the confirmation of the state Senate.

Original board members would be appointed, one for 2 yrs., one for 4, and the third, for 6 yrs., but their successors would each have full 6-yr. terms. Board members would receive salaries and would be required to make annual reports to the governor.

First drafts of the Oklahoma Labor Relations Act are being distributed to city and state unions. All are invited to express ideas and suggestions for changes at meetings scheduled.

C.I.O. and A.F.ofL. lobbyists will join in seeking the bill's passage according to C. W. Schwoerke, attorney who helped to draft the bill, and who also is author of the state's minimum wage-maximum hour law, now being tested in the State Supreme Court. Mr. Schwoerke served as ("labor's exponent") a Representative in the last legislature, but failed to win re-election in the recent campaign.

In Business Center near Terminals and Ocean Piers

MERCHANTS WAREHOUSE is also adjacent to the new traffic tunnel, the shortest way to East Boston and northern New England. This ideal location offers shippers numerous advantages, including reduced delivery time and, not infrequently, lowered shipping costs.

The large, seven-story fireproof building, of masonry construction, provides a storage capacity of 200,000 square feet, bonded and free. This space is divided into four distinct sections of solid, fireproof partitions, thus earning a low insurance rating.

Equipment is modern and complete, consisting of whips, elevators and other facilities for the swift, safe handling of goods. Exceptional cleanliness throughout the warehouse creates a condition specially favorable for the storage of foodstuffs, vast quantities of which are received and shipped daily.

Property is served by the Union Freight Railroad. Thus flat Boston rates are applicable to and from warehouse.

When selecting your warehouse in this important Northwest market, can't we tell you more about the complete facilities at our three strategic locations?

Cocoa Bean Protest

FRANK N. GRAVES, Traffic Manager of the Warfield Co., chocolate division, Chicago, has filed a protest with the Southern Ports Foreign Freight Committee against the proposed increase in rates on cocoa beans to interior points. The 6 cent increase, Mr. Graves stated, "would make it difficult to compete in the middle west with eastern manufacturers of chocolate and cocoa. It would seem only fair that we should have a slight advantage in the middle western territory, as it is almost impossible for a manufacturer in Chicago, Ill., or Milwaukee, Wis., to compete with eastern manufacturers in their territory." Mr. Graves also contended that the rail rate committee which framed the cocoa bean rate increase proposal had overlooked the fact that central western importers of cocoa beans must absorb a 25 per cent shrinkage due to cleaning and roasting.

The Ambrosia Choc. Co., Paul F. Beich Co., E. J. Brach & Sons, Bunte Bros., R. H. Johnston Co., Siren Mills Corp. and Geo. Ziegler Co. advised the Southern Ports Foreign Freight Committee that they opposed the proposed increase and requested a public hearing.

Visco Chemical Products Co., Lancaster, Ohio, has been acquired by the American Products Co., Cincinnati. The Lancaster plant, which manufactures laundry specialties, polishes and cleaners, will be moved to Cincinnati.

Evans Buys Carpenter Warehouse at White Plains, N. Y.

The warehouse of Carpenter Storage, Inc., White Plains, N. Y., one of that city's oldest institutions, has been sold to J. H. Evans and Sons, Inc., the same city. The building has 50,000 sq. ft. of space. The warehouse has been in possession of the Carpenter family for more than 25 yrs. The company has been in receivership since last April. The sale was approved Dec. 27 by Supreme Court Justice Gerald Nolan. William H. Evans, president and treasurer of the Evans company sought to purchase the building early last summer, this being the third expansion of the Evans company since its formation.

The Carpenter warehouse, really two buildings—one five stories and the other three—is one of the finest structures of its type in that section. At the present time it includes a modern rug cleaning plant and private rooms as well as general space for storage purposes. Of concrete construction, it is completely fireproof.

What Happens Here!

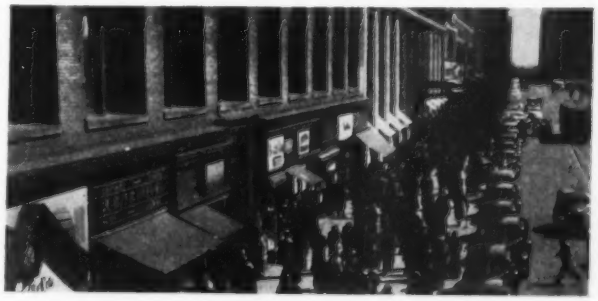

Here...at the South Eleventh Street Warehouse Corporation dock the great steamers of the world. This reliable firm, one of the big warehouse forwarders in New York, handles bulk commodities of all kinds and...

...stores them in their buildings, protected by modern sprinkler system, efficient handling equipment, and A.D.T. watchmen supervision. Orders coming in are given personal attention...

...through a special system of handling under Manager Milbauer. Bonded or free merchandise may be stored—with free lighterage on carload lots. Only 20 minutes distant...

...lies the heart of New York, quickly accessible by truck or railroad. Despite these obvious advantages, rates are surprisingly low. For full details and rates, write or phone The South Eleventh Street Warehouse Corporation, at 480 Kent Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BUFFALO N.Y.

Unsurpassed Warehousing and Distributing Facilities

Located in the shipping and warehousing center of a large and prosperous market covering western New York and Pennsylvania, northern Ohio, and all the Lake and St. Lawrence River ports, including the Canadian. Thus, shippers transacting business within this area are in a position to enjoy many advantages not available elsewhere.

Docks are served directly by Great Lakes Transit Corp. steamers and New York Barge Canal lines, affording transportation economies that materially reduce shipping costs. There are direct track connections with the Pennsylvania Railroad and the New York Central, and reciprocal switching to all other railroads entering the city. Capacity, 50 cars daily, with all loading and unloading under cover. Pool car distribution. Warehouses are also served by all suburban trucking companies.

Buildings are of modern construction and enjoy low insurance rates. Adequate equipment is maintained to assure prompt, safe and efficient handling, and exceptional facilities are provided for the storage and shipping of goods of all kinds, in any quantities. Established 1903. Capital, $900,000.

News of the Conventions

Outstanding programs and entertainment are assured, according to recent convention releases of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Assn. and the cold storage and merchandise divisions of the American Warehousemen's Assn.

Arrangements are well under way by the National Furniture Warehousemen's Assn. which convenes at the Hotel Adolphus, Dallas, Texas, the week of Feb. 7. Plans call for an elaborate schedule of entertainment. The convention officially opens on Tuesday, Feb. 7th and ends with breakfast Sunday morning, Feb. 12th. Tuesday night is set aside for the usual get-together party which affords everyone the opportunity to renew old friendships and to get acquainted with others. Wednesday night is given over to the local committee and will be known as "Texas Night." The members are in for some surprises on this night. Saturday has been set aside for the big annual banquet and dance. On this occasion there will undoubtedly be a guest speaker, floorshow, and golf prize awards.

The 48th annual meeting of the A.W.A., scheduled for Feb. 15 to 18 at the Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, promises to be an outstanding one. Gus K. Weatherred, as president of the merchandise division, and Jack Goodfellow, as president of the association of Refrigerated Warehouses, are co-chairmen of the general committee. These two, together with Ralph MacKenzie, president of the Southwestern Chapter of the A. of R. W. and Amos Brooks, secretary-manager of the Southwest Warehouse and Transfermen's Assn., constitute the steering committee, whose general duty is to secure the guest speakers for the business program and to work with the other sub-committees in carrying out the final details of the other arrangements.

Bob Abernathy has been selected to head the entertainment committee and Burnie Singleton to head the reception committee.

Suggestions for guest speakers at the A.W.A. convention include some big national names, such as John N. Garner, Vice-President of the United States, Jesse M. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., W. Lee O'Daniel, Governor-elect of the State of Texas, and Will R. Clayton, Anderson Clayton Co.

Friday night will be Dallas Night, at which time the Dallas warehousemen will put their best foot forward and show the warehousing industry just what a fine place the Southwest is.

The big night is Thursday when the annual banquet will be held. A prominent speaker will entertain the guests after the banquet, which will be followed by dancing.

President Goodfellow of the Association of Refrigerated Warehouses has appointed Charles M. Smith of San Antonio, H. C. Stone of Los Angeles, and Garth Shoemaker of Elmira, N. Y. as the nominating committee to report at the annual meeting to submit names of members to fill vacancies on the executive committee occurring at that time.

Speculation Boosts Cleveland Warehousing Business

Reports from Cleveland public warehouses indicate that holdings have been increased to some extent by speculation of clients. Wholesalers and dealers in various commodities are taking advantage of prevailing low prices and are buying products in quantity to store and hold for what they regard as an inevitable market upturn.

This, of course, does not apply to all fields. In some quarters the desire to end the year with a low inventory has more than offset any speculation trend. However, business has been definitely improved in some warehouses by the storage movement.

Platt & Co., food brokers, Cleveland, Ohio, have increased the size of their quarters in the Distribution Terminal Warehouse and will hold open house for friends and customers on Jan. 11.

Rudie Wilhelm in New Modern Building

The new two unit super-warehouse and garage of the Rudie Wilhelm Warehouse Co., Portland, Ore., is one of the most modern in the northwest and an appropriate monument to 28 yrs. of service to customers in Portland and the Pacific Northwest. This new unit is at Northwest 12th and Overton. It is a two-story reinforced concrete structure covering an entire city block and is equipped with automatic sprinkler and burglar alarm system. Its location is within a few minutes of downtown Portland and convenient to the rails and steamship lines.

Rudie Wilhelm and his wife have run the business from its inception back in the days when it was but a "hole in the wall." In 1923 they leased larger quarters at 8th and Everett Streets, occupying same, however, in 1925.

New Warehouse Construction at Seattle Port

In order to keep abreast of the rapid growth of Seattle's salmon industry, the Seattle Port Commission has called for bids on the second large unit of a comprehensive construction program that will augment facilities for handling canned salmon at Smith Cove by means of enlarged warehouse accommodations.

Costing approximately $600,000 will be the completed project that will increase warehouse facilities at Pier 40 to permit storing of 3,000,000 cases of canned salmon, 1,000,000 cases more than the current capacity. Aid and assistance are expected of the government in the new warehouse project, through funds of the Public Works Administration.

Bids opened during the month of December for the second unit of the port project and plan, for which $200,000 is available, include construction of the substructure, along with timber work and pile driving. At a cost of $88,270 the first unit is already started, and was well under way in December, consisting of excavating, bulkheading, and riprap work.

The port of Seattle being a basic center for the distribution and dissemination of salmon, held in warehouse by the millions of cases, with carry-overs or holdovers every year when the fresh pack comes in, additional units are even now being planned that will provide for ample future facilities.

Construction of a superstructure at a cost of $300,000 is embodied in the third unit, while the fourth entails the installation of fire protection equipment at a cost of $30,000, but bids for these two phases of the project will only be called when work has progressed sufficiently. When these warehouse additions will have been completed there will be available for usage two spacious new buildings, two stories in height, with extensive storage space for new packs of salmon.

Celotex Opens Fourth Pottsco Producing Plant

The Celotex Corp. has announced that a new plant for the manufacture of Pottsco, a light-weight concrete aggregate, has been placed in operation at Pittsburgh, bringing the company's total to four plants for the manufacture of expanded blast furnace slag which is sold by the Pottsco division of Celotex.

Pottsco was first developed in 1928 by the Pottsco Corp., which was acquired last March by Celotex, and is used chiefly in the construction industry where insulated concrete is necessary. A by-product of pig iron, it is first melted in blast furnaces and after reaching 3,000 deg. Fahrenheit, is poured and blown into expanded clinker forms and cooled. It is then sent to the crushing and screening plant where a special patented process pulverizes and prepares it for use.

Increasing demand for the new product, the company announced, has necessitated the additional plant at Pittsburgh, and special sales forces have been organized throughout the country in line with the improvement.

Tupman Thurlow Sales Co., New York City, has been appointed exclusive United States distributor for Chatka crabmeat.

o o o

Vickerie, Inc., Chicago, producer of skin emulsions and cosmetics, has appointed an advertising agency for the purpose of creating national sales.

o o o

Universal Plastics Co. is expanding its New Brunswick, N. J., plant through construction of two new buildings to house the finishing, machine, shipping and storage departments and offices.

Supreme Court Upholds I.C.C. on Warehouse Leasing Order

The I.C.C. order which prohibited seven railroads from furnishing commercial warehousing space to interstate shippers in the Port of New York district at less than cost, has been upheld by the Supreme Court in a decision made Jan. 3.

The railroads involved were the Baltimore & Ohio, Central Railroad Co. of New Jersey, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Erie, Lehigh Valley, New York Central and the Pennsylvania.

The rails had told the tribunal that the I.C.C. order would "have a most vital and revolutionary effect upon all railroads throughout the United States in connection with their right to make leases for reasonable market rentals."

Justice Stanley Reed delivered the opinion that affirmed a decision by a three-judge Federal court in southern New York sustaining the order. No dissent was announced.

The I.C.C. contended the railroads furnished the warehousing space at below cost "in order to induce the movement of traffic over their respective lines." The loss, it said, was offset from transportation revenues.

This practice discriminated against other shippers who were "charged the full tariff rates undiminished by below-cost warehousing," the order said.

The rails contended the order was void because the I.C.C. had not shown that "the reasonable rental value of the lease given to the shipper exceeded the rental he actually paid."

"Receipt by the shipper of more value than he pays must be shown before a concession can arise." the rails added.

The City of Boston and the Boston Port Authority joined in the case in support of the order. They contended the practices at New York drew freight from Boston.

Bayway Terminal Asks for Tax Reductions

The Bayway Terminal Corp., Elizabeth, N. J., dissatisfied with reductions granted by the Union County Board of Taxation, has petitioned the State Board of Tax Appeals for further cuts in the assessed valuations this year.

A group of buildings at 735 South Front St., with total assessed valuation of $282,700, is subject of one appeal. The terminal management wants land reduced from $19,200 to $15,000 but does not seek additional reduction in the building valuation, originally $263,500 but cut to $240,000 by the county in November.

Although the county board reduced the warehouse and terminal structure's valuation from $415,000 to $380,000, another state board appeal asks further reduction to $408,600. Land valued at $120,000, considered just by the county board, is worth only $83,600, according to the owner.

Another tract on which is situated "an abandoned corrugated iron structure," according to the appeal, is involved in the third Bayway appeal. The county took $4,000 off a $12,000 land valuation but dismissed an action against the building assessment. The state is asked to slice $1,500 off the $4,000 building valuation.

British Columbia Stations for Driver Tests

HUNTINGTON, W. VA.

A strategic point from which to supply more than 5,000,000 population over night, located in Ohio, Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia. Can you afford to overlook this?

A large national manufacturer used our storage for several months last year to store their excess production for storage-in-transit to supply later their patrons in Florida, Alabama, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky. When selling season started, we loaded out in six weeks seventy-two carloads to their customers. The specifications of inbound cars differed greatly from outbound cars, yet, when final car shipped, total cases shipped tallied to the case as to kind, size, etc., with cases received. Only careful work could accomplish this as cars contained from 750 to 1350 cases each.

Huntington's location was selected only after much investigation and found to be the best point from which to serve the South very quickly—so we are wondering if you are passing up an opportunity to serve not only the entire South but the Tri-State section as well and at reasonable cost.

We are told manufacturers, as a rule, know their manufacturing costs but they do not know their distribution costs. When using our service you can know to the penny what the cost is with us. We are a sales-minded warehouse and will cooperate with your representatives.

For your convenience, we have here:

WAREHOUSES—Brick, concrete, heavy mill construction, fully sprinklered, clean, cool, dry, airy and located in the heart of the wholesale district, adjacent to the retail section—the most accessible warehouses in Huntington.

INSURANCE—.223c. per $100.00 per year—90% co-insurance—lowest merchandise warehouse rate and only merchandise warehouse in the city sprinkler equipped.

SIDINGS—B. & O. Railway and C. & O. Railway—2 sidings— capacity 4 cars each—no delay spotting cars immediately upon arrival. No switching charges on carloads. All established truck lines call for and deliver shipments to the warehouse; private equipment for local or nearby deliveries. Dock facilities for twenty-five trucks.

ORGANIZATION—A complete warehouse organization to handle your merchandise rapidly and economically, experienced traffic department, alert shipping and delivery department — all papers covering shipments, deliveries, reports, collections, etc., are mailed same day transaction handled—you can always be in touch with what you have on hand with us—Whatever your system is, that will be our system for the handling of your product and your business will be strictly confidential.

Free Wheat Storage at Halifax

Grain exporters have been notified by the Montreal Board of Trade that the port of Halifax will offer free storage for wheat in the government elevators there this winter in an effort to encourage the movement of wheat overseas via that port. The charge at St. John, N. B., the chief outlet in recent years in the maritime provinces, is 1/40th of a cent per bushel per day. Quebec has reduced its maximum storage rate to 1 cent per bushel for the winter, with the minimum 1/19th of a cent per bushel per day.

New Ship Terminal At Bayonne, N. J.

THE new ship and railroad terminal in the upper bay off Bayonne, N. J., said to be the largest of its kind in the world, will be ready for operations early this month and will be opened formally by port, municipal and State ceremonies, as announced by Harper Holt, manager of The Central District, Inc., operator of the terminal.

With 2 miles of wharfage space capable of berthing fifteen to eighteen ocean-going freighters at one time, the terminal is expected by its planners to bring to the Port of New York considerable new business now handled by Baltimore, Norfolk and other Southern Atlantic ports. It will be the only terminal of its kind in the New York area, where trunk-line railroads will have track accommodations alongside the cargo ports of freighters, with every modern facility for the rapid transfer of cargoes coming in and going out.

It is backed by the Lehigh Valley and Jersey Central Railroads and constructed as an artificial island with the aid of Federal funds.

Mr. Holt said "The Bayonne Terminal was not planned and will not operate as a warehouse. Our first concern as a terminal is to keep goods moving, to transfer them between rail and ship and ship and rail. Any storage will be incidental to our primary purpose."

The terminal lies on what were once shoals. In June, 1937, dredgers started to clear channels and pour the sand and mud into the outlined cribbing that forms the 2-mile bulkhead of the island. More than 8,000,000 cubic yds. of material came out of the channels, which now are 35 ft. deep, sufficient for the largest feighters and many good-sized passenger liners.

Tracks, connected with all the trunk lines along the Jersey shore, reach the terminal island over a viaduct leading from 33rd St., Bayonne, and are distributed on the aprons of the first station shed. This shed, now nearing completion, is about the size of the new North River piers, 1,000 ft. long and 140 ft. wide.

The channels are connected with the main ship channel above Robbins Reef Light, with a channel entrance 650 ft. wide. The side channels along the bulkheads are 300 ft. wide, and on one side is a widened turning basin.

Philco Radio & Television Corp. has taken over the Conservador refrigerator division of Fairbanks, Morse & Co. Philco has acquired a lease on the Indianapolis manufacturing facilities, which will be operated under the management of W. P. Jones, formerly F-M home appliance manager.

vessels in the harbor would continue for another year. Wages and conditions of work in force during the season just ended will remain in force throughout 1939.

The Shipping Federation of Canada has contracts with the International Longshoremen's Assn. at Montreal, Halifax and St. John. The agreements are concerned only with the handling of cargo on ocean vessels. The Federation represents the major ocean steamship companies and agencies in Eastern Canada.

Shows Drop From Year Ago

Harvey O. Schermerhorn, N. Y., Barge Canal Commissioner, reports that canal commerce during 1938 was approximately 350,000 tons below last year's total of 5,010,464 tons.

Mr. Schermerhorn attributed the decline to "generally poor business conditions and the definite drop in the Westward movement of commodities." Mr. Schermerhorn singled out grain as the one commodity to show improvement, its volume approximating the high levels of 1934.

Champagne from Oranges

Los Angeles, Cal., it is claimed, is destined soon to become the second great champagne center of the world. And it is believed this champagne will not be made from grapes but from a combination of grape fruit and orange juices. Champagne made from citrus fruits is not a dream but an accomplished fact, and today in a model demonstration laboratory in Hollywood there are stacked thousands upon thousands of bottles of clear, sparkling champagne. It has all of the sparkle, life, bouquet, and taste of the best foreign grape champagne, according to wine experts.

Once the vintners of Southern California are equipped to make this sparkling beverage and the public has learned how closely the local product duplicates the famous champagnes of France, Southern California will become a great champagne producing center, according to H. C. Moore, inventor of the process.

Bottled in Los Angeles, champagne will be sold for about $2 a fifth gallon. Original champagne costs from $6.50 to $8.00 a bottle.

To the juice of oranges and grapefruit Mr. Moore adds distilled water, dextrose and yeast. The mixture then is drawn slowly through a series of five glass-lined, air tight, chromium fitted, 200-gal. tanks. By the time the juice reaches the last tank, 75 per cent of the sugar has been converted. This takes 10 days. Under the Moore process champagne is made in 60 days as compared with the 4 to 6 yrs. necessary to make real champagne.

It is stated that the Federal Alcohol Administration will not permit Mr. Moore to label his finished product "champagne," due to the reason that his process does not duplicate the exact procedure followed in the champagne district of France.

Will Rubber Take the Place of Paper in Coffee Packing?

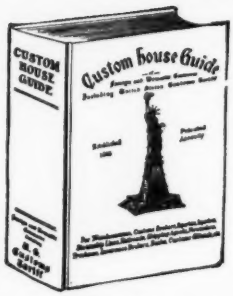

It is rumored that one large company dealing in coffee is making research on the use of a transparent rubber product as a substitute for paper in packaging of its product. It is claimed that the rubber product is not only water, but moisture proof, and that by having both of these qualities, will serve better for vacuum-packing.

MAN

THE following article on Man appeared in the Dec. 1 issue of Transport, published by the Patrick Transfer & Storage Co., Houston, Texas:

"Man comes into this world without his consent, and leaves it against his will. When he is little the big girls kiss him, and when he is big the little girls kiss him. If he is active in politics, it is for graft, if he is not interested in politics, he is no good to his country. If he makes a lot of money, he is dishonest; if he is poor, he is a bad manager. If he needs credit, he can't get it; if he is prosperous, everyone wants to do something for him. If he is religious, he is a hypocrite; if he doesn't go to the temple, he is a hardened sinner. If he gives to charity, it is for show; if he doesn't, he is a stingy cuss. If he is affectionate, he is a soft specimen; if he doesn't care for anyone, he is coldhearted. If he dies young, there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he missed his calling. If he saves money, he is a tightwad; if he spends it, he is a spendthrift. If he has money, he is a grafter; if he hasn't got it, he's a bum. So, what's the use!"

IN THE Cold Storage FIELD

Future Trends in the Cold Storage Industry

By Van Rensselaer H. Greene

IN past years it was standard practice in the cold storage industry to design warehouses with 60 per cent to 70 per cent operated as a cooler and 30 per cent to 40 per cent as freezer space. Nowadays plants are designed quite the opposite because of the fact that the trend and demand are towards lower room temperatures.

Originally, products kept in high temperature rooms consisted mainly of apples, eggs, cheese, celery, etc. Considering some of these items separately, it is interesting to note the transition.

The outlook for cold storage space in apples is tending towards special warehouses located in the midst of the producing area. Apple holdings in the cold storage warehouses are undergoing a marked decline. This is the result of the decreased demand for apples and the fact that these local warehouses offer a rapid truck delivery to the point of shipment and the fact that the grower of apples can take advantage of the proximity of the warehouses to pick the crop during the height of the season.

In the cold storage of eggs, the increased demand and use of frozen eggs has resulted in materially increasing the percentage of eggs held at freezer temperatures as against high temperature storage. Frozen eggs are becoming more and more preferred by the majority of large users and the demand has increased until something in the neighborhood of 40 per cent of the total stored eggs are frozen.

To take the place of a declined market in high temperature storage of eggs and apples, we have a new demand for frozen foods. This industry, as you know, has grown rapidly and it is predicted that within the next few years probably one-third of the foodstuffs grown in this country will be quick frozen. At the present time something in the neighborhood of 150,000,000 lbs. of this product has been frozen per year and these fruits and vegetables are replacing largely the fresh market although some serious inroads have already been made in the domestic market of canned goods.

The production of frozen foods and vegetables will continue at the present increasing rate for the next few years, the present limiting factors being difficulty of getting adequate products for quick freezing, the necessary control factors in the freezing of the product and high production and distribution costs, due to the newness of the situation.

Even as far as this development has gone complaints have arisen as to the inability of a number of cold storage warehouses to cope with this demand at the required freezer.

It is always advisable to store frozen foods for retail and wholesale consumption at or near the point of distribution and for this development, terminal warehouses should provide materially.

The cold storage industry as a whole can be of help to this new quick-freezing industry and greatly benefit itself by keeping abreast of these demands and maintaining a knowledge of the industry and its requirements.

At present, one of the great problems connected with the frozen food industry is the distribution of the product from the warehouse to the retailer and it may become necessary in the future for the cold storage warehouse to assume this responsibility.

Rapid Growth of Quick Freezing Creates Many Problems

IN any new development of a major industry, such as the quick frozen food industry promises to be, it can naturally be expected that a great many unforeseen problems will develop. The great many steps through which the food product progresses from the fields to the table are so complex and so closely related that no matter how perfect the original product may be, the failure of any one step in the chain will cause failure of the whole scheme.

Unquestionably these problems are the cause of the present strange situation wherein there is a very definite demand on the part of the consuming public for frozen food products of high quality while at the same time a great many cold storage warehouses contain thousands of pounds of frozen product apparently having no definite destination.

The popularity and success of the Birdseye development have been made possible by the use of one complete organization handling every phase of the business from the planting of the seed to the final distribution to the retail customer. They are very careful to see that the products, prior to freezing, are of the right character for freezing and of the best quality obtainable and then, by very careful supervision of every succeeding step, they make sure that when the housewife has selected and used one or two major products, that she would without hesitation use other products of the complete line.

Any other organization which could operate on this same basis could undoubtedly also find itself at certain times of the year short of some of the products required to meet the present demand.

A great many other distributors have gone into business with a selected variety, some of which might be excellent, and occasionally having one or two items of inferior quality, and the purchase of such items by the housewife has been a very definite obstacle in the way of future sales development.

It seems therefore to have been clearly shown that either one large organization must handle a complete line of products to give complete satisfaction or there must be developed some system of cooperation which would assure the equivalent results.

It has been predicted that within 5 yrs. one-third of the nation's food supply would be in the quick-frozen form but this prediction is, of course, based upon the present indications of accelerated growth and the assumption that the problems of distribution and retail sales can be solved.

The present retail price scale is not generally considered exorbitant by those who are willing to pay a little more to obtain a better product, but it is probably above the level paid by those who must provide large quantities of food at low cost, and this is true even with all due allowance for the saving of waste and the other arguments for the economy in the use of frozen foods. The growth into larger volume of production will undoubtedly be reflected by lower costs, which in turn will also produce greater demand.

From the production standpoint, there have been a considerable number of frozen food producers who have previously engaged in the production of one or a few items, such as vegetables or fruits or a single item of fish or poultry and an attempt has been made to find outlets for these products through the regular channels by which they have in the past disposed of canned goods and other packaged foods of the unfrozen variety. In the past these organizations have been able to assume all of the responsibilities in the production of high grade canned fruits or vegetables. When the articles left their factories very little could happen to reduce quality up to the time of consumption and on that basis it was not difficult to distribute these separate items to brokers and distributors who sold them separately to their various customers as needed.

With frozen foods this, of course, cannot be done because one of the most important parts of the whole program is that part which comes after the product has been produced and packaged and in order to protect the name of his product and his own prestige the producer must have some interest in the means by which the goods are to be transported, stored and finally distributed.

It may be that the refrigerated warehouses can increase the scope of their former activities and take upon themselves a great part of this very serious problem.

Food brokers and distributors operating in cities of small and medium size prefer to work with as little equipment as possible and if they had the means of operating with an office organization only and without plant equipment, or distribution facilities, they could unquestionably develop the frozen food business much more rapidly.

Refrigerated trucks and a delivery organization are, of course, something that everyone would like to avoid in these days of high labor costs and labor difficulties. On the other hand, there are a great many of the refrigerated warehouses which now operate ice businesses and they, of course, should be familiar with this problem. At any rate it might be well for all freezer storage operators to consider this as a possibility of increasing their freezer business.

All of this is suggested as a means of developing the possibilities of a cooperative effort which would make frozen food distribution possible without having it handled by one organization for a complete job. If this could be done, there would be many more opportunities for the individual warehousemen than there would be were the business confined solely to a few large distributors.

Sprague, Warner Has Own Line of Frozen Foods

Sprague, Warner & Co., oldest wholesale grocery firm in the middle west, has started distribution of its own private label line of frosted fruits, vegetables, seafood and poultry, under its own name, Richelieu brand.

This is claimed to be one of the few instances that a wholesale grocery firm has made its own arrangements for packing its exclusive frozen food line, and offering it under a long-established trade name.

Honor Brand frosted foods, which the company pioneered at Chicago over 2 yrs. ago, will hereafter be distributed by Waterman & Co., from a branch recently established.

The Richelieu line of fruits is from the Pacific Coast, vegetables from the best growing areas for each item from the country at large, and the seafoods from the east, west and gulf seaboards. Poultry is the choicest U. S. Grade No. 1, produced in rural sections. All products are processed and packed at the point of origin and shipped to the Chicago warehouses in carloads.

Two New Members of Cold Storage Div. of A.W.A.

The following concerns have been admitted to membership in the Association of Refrigerated Warehouses, a division of the American Warehousemen's Assn.: Chemung Cold Storage, Division of National Dairy Products Corp., Elmira, N. Y.; and the Piedmont Cold Storage Corp., Charlotte, N. C.

Frozen Food Distributor for Iowa

The Frosted Foods Sales Corp., New York City, has appointed the O. B. West Co., Des Moines, Ia., as Central Iowa distributor for frozen foods processed by that concern. More than 60 kinds of fruits, vegetables, seafoods, meats and poultry will be handled. Duncan Kelly is representing the Frosted Foods firm in the appointment of dealers.

New Quick Freezing at Booth Fisheries

The Seattle, Wash., branch of the Booth Fisheries Corp. is preparing to enlarge production by the quick-freezing route through installation of thoroughly modern equipment for gross quantities of packaged fillets of fish.

A new plate-type quick-freezing machine represents the recent installation in the Seattle unit of the Booth enterprise. With it, G. J. Haecker, manager of the Seattle plant, is conducting a number of experiments that will doubtless prove of considerable value during the forthcoming commercial fisheries production of the new season.

Inasmuch as there is being experienced some seasonal suspension of major fishing operations during this mid-winter season, the new quick-freezing apparatus is not likely to be used at once, but will be placed in excellent service and large production in the near future. It has a freezing capacity of 400 lbs. of packaged fillets per hour in five stages between refrigerated plates.

In the process used at the Booth plant, the boneless fillets are packed in open-top waxed cartons which are placed in aluminum frames to preserve their shape during freezing. Once frozen, the packages are sent through a wrapping machine that covers the entire parcel with moisture-proof cellophane printed in vivid colors. With the top thus visible, there is considerable shelf appeal at point of sale for these frozen fish commodities.

The taxes in controversy total $4,404.90.

Trade Pact Causes Heavy N. Y. Warehouse Withdrawals

The trade agreement with the United Kingdom which became effective Jan. 3 brought one of the busiest days in years at the New York port, according to reports from the custom house, bonded warehouses, and customs brokers.

Withdrawals of goods from bonded warehouses were at three times the normal rate, it was indicated, although no attempt was made to determine the country of origin. According to Gregory O'Keefe, assistant collector of customs at New York, withdrawals on Jan. 3 numbered 1,800 with the goods involved being valued at more than $2,000,000.

The majority of withdrawals involved flax, woolen and cotton manufactures, the products most affected under the agreement which was signed at Washington on Nov. 17 last.

Senate Indorses the Jersey Canal

Indorsement of the proposed New Jersey Canal, which is known as the missing link in the Atlantic Intra-Coastal Waterway, has been voted by the State Senate and sent to the House for concurrence, the office of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association in Philadelphia was informed on Dec. 1. The indorsement resolution, offered by Senator Stiefel, of Philadelphia, memorializes the President of the United States "to accelerate the construction of the Bordentown-Sayreville missing link, because of its importance to Pennsylvania industries, notably, coal mining, and because it would bring closer to Philadelphia the Port of New York and the markets of New England and the Middle West."
